SEVENTY-THREE KILLED

Total British Losses at Modder River 438.

Methuen's Delay Will Afford His Troops a Rest.

LONDON, Dec. 2.—As surmised, the British dead and wounded at the hard fought battle of Modder River number hundreds. "Up to 2 o'clock this afternoon only the bare total, 438, of which number 73 were killed," had been given out. So it is impossible to deduct from "the butcher's bill" such information regarding the nature of the fight as details as to the losses of the different units generally indicate.

From General Forestier-Walker's despatch it is proved that all reports of General Methuen's advance after the battle of Modder River were premature, though with the railroad working he should not be long in constructing a temporary bridge. His enforced delay, doubtless, will be of considerable service in giving his hard pushed column needful rest, and in allowing the arrival of re-inforcements, of which he must be sorely in need after three such fights, placing hors de combat upwards of 1000 men out of less than 7000.

General Forestier-Walker's announcement that the Canadian marksmen and other re-inforcements have been pushed forward to the neighborhood of the Orange river, to protect General Methuen's line of communications, has relieved much anxiety here, where it was fully expected the Boers would attempt to attack the vulnerable points of the line of communications.

The latest news from Natal indicates that the folk of the Ladysmith relief force has arrived at Frere, though there is considerable conjecture as to the whereabouts of General Clegy, whose movements have not been chronicled recently. It is surmised in some quarters that he may reappear in a totally unexpected quarter, on the flank or rear of General Joubert's force, which is supposed to be concentrated at Grobelaar's Kloof, north of the Tugela river. As General Hildyard's advance guard was in touch with the Boers as long ago as Tuesday last, developments should not be long delayed.

Dundonald's mounted force, November 28, accompanied by four guns, went in pursuit of a body of Boers returning to Colenso. They followed the Boers to within two and a half miles of Colenso, when the Boers replied to the British shells with long-range guns. There were no casualties. Colenso bridge, it is added, was afterwards blown up.

Another detachment of 3,000 British troops sailed for South Africa today.

Owing to the phenomenal sales of the newspapers consequent upon the war a paper famine is threatened. It is reported that the American supplies have failed temporarily.

ALL COMMANDS SUFFERED.

Division of the Killed and Wounded Among the Regiments.

LONDON, Dec. 2.—The official list of the British killed and wounded at the battle of Modder river totals 438. The revised list of non-commissioned officers and men is divided as follows: Ninth Lancers, 1 wounded; engineers, 2 wounded; artillery, 3 killed, 25 wounded; Second Coldstreams, 10 killed, 56 wounded; Third Grenadiers, 9 killed, 38 wounded, four missing; Scots Guards, 10 killed, 37 wounded, 1 missing; Northumberland Fusiliers, 11 killed, 31 wounded; First Northumberlands, 3 wounded; Second Yorkshire, 9 killed, 44 wounded; First North Lancashire, 3 killed, 11 wounded; Argyll and Sutherland Highlanders, 15 killed, 95 wounded, 2 missing; First Coldstreams, 20 wounded; South African reserve, 1 wounded; medical corps, 1 wounded.

REBUILDING THE BRIDGE.

Methuen Remains at Modder River and is Being Re-inforced.

LONDON, Dec. 2.—The war office has received the following from General Forestier-Walker:

"Cape Town, Dec. 1. General Gatacre reports no change in the situation. General French has made a reconnaissance from Naauwpoort to Rosmead. The troops returned today.

"General Methuen's flesh wound is slight. He is remaining at Modder river for the reconstruction of the bridge. Am re-inforcing him with Highlanders and a cavalry corps. Horse artillery, the Canadian regiment, Australian contingents and three battalions of infantry moved up to the De Aar and Belmont line."

DILLON DECLINES.

Thinks Ireland Would Not Accept the Proposed Unity.

LONDON, Dec. 2.—Mr. John Dillon, M. P., declines to serve on the committee appointed by the recent Dublin meeting to carry on the unity negotiations. In a letter to Mr. Timothy Healy he says he believes the country has lost all faith in the possibility of the reconstruction of the United Irish Parliamentary party by negotiations between the members of Parliament, and adds that he does not believe the country will accept a settlement so reached. Hence, while wishing well for the efforts at unity, he declines to serve on the committee.

TO BE SIGNED TODAY.

Treaty for the Partition of Samoa Ready for Execution.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 2.—The British ambassador, Lord Pauncefote, was at the State Department today, and with Secretary Hay went over the new drafts of the treaty for the partition of Samoa, preparatory to the final signing this afternoon. Three copies of the instrument were prepared, one for each of the governments concerned, and these preliminaries were so satisfactorily disposed of that there was felt to be not the slightest further doubt of the complete execution of the treaty today.

BELL TELEPHONE GOES OUT.

To be Merged in the American or Long Distance Company.

BOSTON, Dec. 2.—The directors of the American Bell Telephone Company have voted to turn over the assets of the company to the American Telephone and Telegraph Company. This is the first step in the removal of the company from Massachusetts to New York. The action was taken yesterday, but was not announced until today, when President Hudson authorized the following:

"The substance of the action of the directors is that the assets of the American Bell Telephone Company are to be taken over by the long distance company (American Telephone & Telegraph Company). It is to be recommended that two shares of long distance company stock be exchanged for one share of American Bell Telephone Company stock. The balance of $19,000,000 or $20,000,000 of long distance company stock will be held for the benefit of the long distance company."

The Bell Telephone people state that they are as yet unprepared to announce the rate of dividends to be paid on the long distance company stock, as well as the exact date when the new plan will become operative. It is good outside opinion that the new stock will carry yearly dividends of eight per cent per share.

As a result of the announcement Bell Telephone stock dropped from 350 to 347 in the Boston market this morning.

BIG DRY DOCK.

One of the Largest in the Country to be Built at San Francisco.

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 2.—One of the largest dry docks in the United States is to be constructed at Hunter's point in this harbor. It will be built over a natural rock basin, and will cost about $750,000. The dock is to be 750 feet long, 80 feet wide at the bottom, and 120 feet wide at the top, having 28 feet of water over the sills at low tide. It will be slightly larger than the dock at the Boston navy yard, and will be able to accommodate any vessel that enters this port.

GONE TO THE GAME.

Government Officials to See the Big Football Match.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 2.—The State, War and Navy departments were almost deserted today as a result of the West Point-Annapolis football game in Philadelphia. A special train left Washington at 10 o'clock, carrying Secretary Long, Secretary Root, Postmaster General Smith, General Miles, Adjutant General Corbin, Assistant Secretary Allen and a large number of officers and ladies. Almost every chief of bureau, on both the army and navy side, has taken a holiday in order to see the game. In the departments there is considerable betting in a quiet way, the odds being in favor of the navy, in many cases as much as two to one being given on the Annapolis team.

German Woolen Manufacturers Coming to America.

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 2.—The high duty on woolen manufactured goods has had the result of inducing several German mill owners, who have customers in the United States, to establish manufacturing branches in this country. At least three of the plants will be located in this city, all of which expect to turn out cloth for the spring trade.

BIG BLUFF.

Lieutenant Munroe's Capture of Bayonbong.

Made General Conon Think He Had a Large Army.

MANILA, Dec. 2, 6 P. M.—The capture by Lieutenant Munroe and 50 men of the Fourth cavalry of the Filipino General Conon, with 800 officers and men, with rifles, several American and 70 Spanish prisoners, at Bayonbong, province of Nueva Vizcaya, was a successful bluff. He tapped the rebel wire, telegraphed to Conon that he was advancing with a large force, and demanded his surrender. After negotiations, Conon consented to capitulate to a "superior" force, whereupon Lieutenant Munroe telegraphed that he would enter the town with a small guard and receive the garrison's surrender. He captured the whole Filipino force and secured their arms, the rebels supposing Munroe had an army behind him.

HIS WHOLE FORCE.

Eight Hundred Armed Men Surrendered to Fifty.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 2.—General Otis informed the War Department today of the surrender of Bayonbong in the following despatch:

"Manila, December 2. Report received that Bayonbong, with province Nueva Viscaya, surrendered November 28 to Lieutenant Monroe, Fourth cavalry, who commanded advance scouts on Carriclan, train consisting of 50 men, Fourth cavalry, and three native scouts. Insurgent General Canon surrendered entire force, numbering 800 men, armed with Mausers, and number officers; 70 Spanish and two American prisoners secured and probably considerable insurgent property."

STRENGTH OF THE INSURRECTION.

Lies in the Moral Aid of American Anti-Expansionists.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 2.—General Wheeler, in a personal letter received here today, dated at Angeles, Luzon, says:

"There are more than 20 different tribes in this island, and very few of them would submit to Aguinaldo's rule. Aguinaldo and his generals would like to govern, because it would give them great power, and many of his subjects like the war because for the first time in their lives they have authority to carry a gun. They live by taking what they want from the people. Many of them are robbers who rob defenseless people of their money and who sometimes murder. If we should withdraw there would be warfare and anarchy in the islands, and the well-to-do people would get some strong government to come and take control.

"Aguinaldo publishes a paper, which is filled with expressions from people of the United States who are called anti-imperialists, and I think were it not for those expressions the insurrection would be closed."

SAILORS REBEL.

Liberties of the Men on the Fleet at Manila Restricted.

BOSTON, Dec. 2.—A letter received in this city from a United States naval officer stationed at Cavite, bearing the date of October 26, says that an order from the governor-general cutting off all intelligence of the movements of the troops was posted on the day the letter was written. A circular also was issued from the flagship of the squadron, restricting the liberties of the men. The letter continues:

"There seems to be a good deal of dissatisfaction among the men—they are so closely confined. They have but little liberty and are kept closely at work. They were called upon today for extra duty. Two from the Baltimore were tried today by the general court-martial for absolute refusal to obey orders and another is awaiting trial for the same thing."

Transport Driven from Her Course.

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 2.—Steamer Coptic has arrived from the Orient, via Honolulu. No mail or passengers will be landed until after quarantine inspection.

Purser Goodrich reports that transport Fort Stevens, which left Seattle November 11, with troops for Manila, put in at Honolulu November 24, after having been driven far out of her course by a storm. The captain reported "all well on board."

Among the Coptic's passengers are ex-Attorney General Smith of Honolulu and Mrs. Haywood, wife of the consul-general at Honolulu.

Suicide of an Officer.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 2.—The War Department has received the following from General Otis at Manila, dated December 2:

"Lieutenant Colonel Brecreton, captain of the Twenty-four infantry, while temporarily insane, committed suicide at Santa Thomas, near San Fernando, Union province, Luzon, at 6 o'clock this morning. Insanity first manifested November 20 at Aringay."

INDIANS DEFEATED.

Energetic Campaign of Mexicans in the Yucatan Peninsula.

CHICAGO, Dec. 2.—A special to the Record from Oaxaca, Mexico, says: Mexican troops are waging an energetic and successful campaign against the Mayo Indians in the interior of the Yucatan peninsula. The troops are commanded by General Bravo. His force of 5,000 soldiers arrived at the Indian frontier November 11, and severe fighting took place for several days, the Indians being forced to abandon strong entrenchments. The towns of Salsan and Mayma, which had been held by the Indians, are now occupied by the government troops. The mosquito fleets on the Balz and Hondo rivers gave valuable aid to the land forces. No report of casualties has been received, but it is known that many were killed and wounded on both sides.

TO MAKE LARGE LOANS.

National City Bank of New York Will Increase Its Capital.

NEW YORK, Dec. 2. It is announced that the directors of the National City Bank have voted to recommend to the shareholders an increase of the capital stock from $1,000,000 to $10,000,000. This increase, in the judgment of the directors, is advisable for a number of reasons, most important of which is the restriction of the national banking act, by which every national bank is prohibited from making a direct loan of more than one tenth of its capital stock. There is much demand in this city for large loans, and the National City Bank, by reason of its large deposits, which have been as high as $147,000,000 in the last year, wishes to be in a position to dispose of its surplus funds at interest in large sums.

For a New Fall River Telephone Company.

FALL RIVER, Mass., Dec. 2.—A call has been issued for a meeting December 7, to organize a new local telephone corporation to be called the Fall River Automatic Telephone Company, with capital stock of $150,000. Hon. R. T. Davis, ex-Mayor Coughlin, President R. J. Thompson of the board of trade and other prominent men head the list of incorporators. The company will use the Strowger automatic telephone system, if a franchise is granted.

This Morning's News.

NEWS HELD BACK.

Absence of Despatches Not the Result of Accident.

LONDON, Dec. 1. There is a remarkable scarcity of news from South Africa, and as the cables are working satisfactorily it is clear that the continued reserve of the public concerning the fight at Modder river is not the result of accident. Nothing is yet intimated as to even the probable extent of the damage received by the British troops or at first inflicted on the Boers.

The [illegible] correspondent with the force advancing to the relief of Ladysmith, telegraphed Monday evening from Frere camp that 12 commandoes had on the previous day passed to the east and west, in the direction of Colenso. It was supposed that their objective point was Grobler's kraal, to the north of the Tugela river.

A Pietermaritzburg telegram, dated Tuesday, states that there had been a slight artillery duel near Colenso, and the Boers were in possession of the bridges.

The Standard's correspondent with Lord Methuen's column, in a message received from Klokfontein Monday, mentions a report current in the camp before the battle that the whole of the Boer forces had crossed the river and concentrated at Spytfontein.

It was stated at the war office tonight that despatches had been received from General Buller, but they were not issued to the press. It incidentally mentioned that the rank and file casualties at Modder River had not yet been received.

TWENTY MILES FROM LADYSMITH.

British Forces United and Moved to Frere Monday.

FRERE, Natal, via Estcourt, Nov. 27. A junction was made yesterday between the troops from Mooi river and those at Estcourt and all the garrison moved to Frere, which is on the railway 10 miles north of Estcourt. The troops bivouacked on the march across the open plains. Splendid scouting was done by the mounted infantry. A troop of the Imperial Light Horse accompanies a train that is making repairs to the railway. There were eight breaks in the line between Estcourt and Frere, and some of the bridges had been destroyed.

A correspondent saw a number of Boers set fire to the grass as a signal to their countrymen that the British were advancing. They placed a wet skin on the flames and then quickly lifted it up, causing a column of smoke to ascend. Two of these Boers were killed. The others were then reinforced by 40 men, and the detachment of Imperial Light Horse who had been engaged with them retired. Bethune's Horse then reinforced the Imperial Light Horse and the Boers were driven off. During the advance to Frere 2,000 Boers were seen retiring rapidly in the direction of Colenso.

The British infantry marched well, but when the men went on picket duty they were very tired. The baggage train under Major Chichester was much delayed. It was obliged to bivouac en route. The Boers fired at it and one [illegible] sergeant was wounded.

A Boer doctor, who had lost his way, was found in the camp last night. He states that the Free State forces have suffered much less than those of the Transvaal during the war. Upon the arrival of the British here it was found that the place had been disgracefully looted by the Boers. Pictures had been smashed, private letters thrown into the road and mattresses ripped up. The bridge had been blown up with Roburite, which had been exploded by means of an electric wire. Both spans of the bridge were broken, but the masonry was intact.

The British advance is now 20 miles from Ladysmith.

SAN DOMINGO AGAIN UNEASY.

Jiminez Not Winning the Confidence or the People.

KINGSTON, Jam., Dec. 1. Mail advices from San Domingo, under date of November 26, report a condition of incipient popular unrest, threatening further armed disturbances. Apparently the acts of the Jiminez administration, particularly relative to financial matters, instead of winning the confidence or approval of the majority of the leaders of the national movement which gave Jiminez a practically a bloodless victory over the followers of Heureux, are exciting popular suspicion and distrust, and armed opposition is rapidly developing for the purpose of enforcing popular desire on Jiminez.

The advices further allege that the American Improvement Company also opposes Jiminez's policy, and inclines to moral sympathy, if not open support, of the popular demands.

NO ALLIANCE WITH AMERICA.

United States Not Contemplating a Foreign Combination.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 1. No alliance exists with England or with Germany, and none is contemplated by the President. This is the answer of the administration to the declaration made yesterday by Mr. Joseph Chamberlain, secretary of state for the British colonies, that "the union, or alliance, if you please, between these two great nations, Great Britain and the United States, is a guarantee of the peace of the world."

The response is, furthermore, in the nature of a reply to Ambassador Choate, who in his Thanksgiving day speech last night declared as the key note of the occasion "Let England and America clasp hands across the sea, and the peace of the world would be absolutely secure."

Whatever may be the understanding reached by Mr. Chamberlain with Emperor William during the latter's visit to Queen Victoria, the authorities declare that no proposition has been advanced or received from either Great Britain or Germany looking to an alliance.

Secretary Hay said today that the statement he made referring to reports of foreign alliances, in the letter he addressed to Colonel Charles Dick, chairman of the Ohio Republican state executive committee, in the Ohio campaign, are as true today as they were when the letter was written. This is the feature of the letter to which the secretary referred:

"There is no alliance with England nor with any power under heaven, except those known and published to the world—the treaties of ordinary international friendship for purposes of business and commerce. No treaty other than those existing has been suggested on either side; none is in contemplation. It has never entered into the mind of the President nor of any member of the government to forsake under any inducement the wise precept and example of the fathers, which forbade entangling alliances with European powers."

Especial comment was caused in diplomatic circles by the speeches of Ambassador Choate and Mr. Chamberlain. There is no doubt that the administration would have preferred that Mr. Choate should not have been so excessively cordial, but it is not proposed to bring the matter to his attention.

Diplomats regarded as particularly significant the bid made by Mr. Chamberlain for a German alliance, and his reference to the existence of the most cordial relations between the London and Berlin governments. While diplomats here are inclined to discredit reports that an alliance was perfected between Germany and England during the emperor's visit, it is noteworthy that Germany has consistently declined to interfere in the Transvaal, though there is no question that her assent to a proposition of this character would be gladly received by both Russia and France.

What Mr. Chamberlain's purpose was in threatening serious consequences to France is not known here. The call of M. Thiebault, the French charge d'affaires, at the State Department today, gave rise to unfounded reports that he had called to make inquiry with respect to Mr. Choate's remarks.

The Misses Ellery of Newport have been guests of their nephew, Mr. Christopher Ellery, and family for a few days.

Mr. and Mrs. James H. Barker have returned from a trip to Washington and New Jersey.

Mrs. E. M. Cobleigh is at Mrs. Restcom Peckham's for a few weeks.

Mr. and Mrs. Daniel A. Carter were guests Thanksgiving day in Newport of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Freeborn.

Mr. William R. Hunter entertained a few of his neighbors and friends Thanksgiving day at "Sunnyfields." Whist playing occupied the attention of 12 players at three tables, in a contest for two prizes offered by the host for the best score. The first prize was a fine turkey, which was suspended over one of the tables, decorated with miniature flags and ribbons of the national colors. The second prize was a book. The first prize was hotly contested, being won by the host, who immediately started the game again with the turkey as the prize, which was finally won by Mr. J. L. DeTerra. The book was won by Mr. J. T. Carr. By no means the smallest part of the entertainment furnished was a turkey dinner (not the turkey that was played for), which suffered terribly from the onslaught of nearly 20 hungry ones.

Ensign L. P. Landis is detached from the Iowa and ordered to the Scindia as a watch and division officer.

Assistant Surgeon J. S. Taylor is detached from the Independence and ordered to the Scindia, and Passed Assistant Surgeon E. R. Ward is ordered to the Independence.

E. Davis is appointed an assistant surgeon.

Lieutenant F. H. Sherman is promoted to be lieutenant commander.

The order assigning Ensign S. G. Magill to the Scindia is revoked.

Acting Machinist A. D. Catherwood is ordered to the Iowa, and Acting Machinist R. F. Nourse is detached from the Iowa and ordered to the Scindia.

Boatswain J. J. Holden is detached from the Franklin and ordered to the recruiting rendezvous at Detroit, Mich.

Acting Boatswain J. H. Delabide's appointment is revoked.

On the invitation of the Secretary of the Navy, Miss Maria Ten Eyck Decatur Mayo, daughter of Mr. W. R. Mayo of Norfolk, and great-granddaughter of Admiral Decatur, has consented to act as sponsor for torpedo boat destroyer Decatur, now under construction by the William R. Trigg Company of Richmond, Va., on the occasion of the launching of that vessel on a date to be fixed hereafter.

The report of Rear Admiral Endicott, chief of the bureau of navy yards and docks, submits estimates for improvements amounting to $14,756,439. Among the main items recommended are a new stone and concrete dry-dock at the New York navy yard, to cost $1,000,000, and at Norfolk, to cost $1,200,000. It is also recommended that the large timber docks at League Island navy yard, Philadelphia, and Mare Island yard, California, be changed to stone and concrete, and the limit of cost in each case be increased to $1,100,000. Another important item is $1,500,000 for barracks at Boston, Brooklyn, League Island, Norfolk and Mare Island, each to cost $300,000.

BANK DEPOSITS IN THE UNITED STATES.

The most striking item in the report made by Comptroller Dawes on the banks of the United States relates to individual deposits. These July 18, 1894 (9,508 banks reporting), amounted to $4,651,215,362 and June 30, 1899 (9,732 banks reporting), to $6,768,678,361, while the comptroller estimates that, including the banks which did not make a report, the grand total on the latter date was $7,512,854,361.

Probably the first date did not represent the lowest ebb of deposits, for at that time the liquidation following the panic had not run its full course. The last date, however, represents approximately the time when deposits were at their maximum. The increase between the two dates, it will be seen, was over $2,000,000,000, or nearly 50 per cent. When it is understood that this gain represents only the cash balance an idea is obtained of the enormous accessions in national wealth in the last five years.

The comptroller's report shows nearly a billion dollars of bank deposits, concerning which no data at first hand was obtainable by him and as to which he was forced to make an estimate based on the figures in the internal revenue office. Moreover, his statistical jurisdiction extends by law to only about half of the six and three-quarters billions of dollars held by the banks which did report. The remaining reports came by courtesy. There is scarcely a branch of statistical work which is of greater interest and importance to the public at large than this of bank deposits. It is regrettable that so considerable a proportion of the banks are still beyond the reach of any sort of governmental examination and report, either state or national. [Chicago News.

BRYAN IN NEW ENGLAND.

Difficult Task Taken upon Himself by the Democratic Leader.

Animated nature affords numerous examples of audacious courage. The peccary, a funny little pig of a beast, will fearlessly charge a rushing locomotive, Cats are said to look upon kings, and female poets annually send great quantities of verse to the editors of magazines. W. J. Bryan's announcement that he is about to undertake a winter campaign in the New England states, organizing Democratic clubs and stirring up "the latent spirit of the Democrats in that region," promises a new and interesting example of daring. We expressed the opinion the other day that New England was a rather unpromising part of the enemy's country for the labors of Mr. Bryan. Still, an impartial world will be curious to know what appeals and arguments he has kept in reserve for the New Englanders.

We suppose any person whose opinions of American politics were worth anything would say at once that five of the six New England states are quite beyond Bryan's reach. Since the greenback disturbance 20 years ago Maine has been securely Republican. New Hampshire elected her last Democratic governor nearly 30 years ago. In Vermont, the Republican Gibraltar, Democrats are so scarce that President Cleveland had some difficulty in finding enough of them to fill the federal offices. The lamented Russell was the only Democrat who has carried Massachusetts since the days of Gaston and B. F. Butler, who was not a Democrat. Rhode Island long ago got over the habit of being a doubtful state. There remains Connecticut, which Mr. Cleveland easily carried, and where Democracy is by no means extinct. There are a good many silver Democrats in Connecticut, but the state convention last year adopted a sound-money resolution. Admitting that Mr. Bryan might arouse enough of the "latent spirit" of the party there to get a serviceable delegation sent to the national convention, what possible chance is there that he would make converts in sufficient numbers to carry the state at the November election?

The most that can be said about that state is that while a long succession of the most powerful miracles would be required to give Vermont to Bryan, three or four might swing Connecticut over. Speaking the language of practical politics, both states are absolutely impassible for him, and impossibility has no degrees. He might practice his awakening art as well in one as in the other. Yet anybody would say he was a fool to waste any time in Vermont.

We suppose no Democrat is so strong today before the voters of New England as Richard Olney. Yet the moral degradation of the party under the management of its present Populist leaders has been so great, and the confidence of the people has been so far forfeited since the poison of Bryanism drove it mad, that even Mr. Olney, receiving, as he would, many Republican votes and the solid support of his own party, would be considered extremely fortunate if he won the electoral votes of Connecticut. The probability is, of course, that Mr. McKinley would carry every New England state against any Democrat. As for W. J. Bryan, whose doctrines are abhorred in every part of New England, and who is regarded as "unsteady and unsafe" by a great majority of the people there, his strength is so slight that his winter campaign in that part of the country will awaken mirth and wonder in about equal measure.

Then why does he visit New England, that hopeless country of the enemy? It must be either to make sure of Bryan delegations to the nominating convention, or in the hope of winning votes that will add one or more of those six states to his "column." If he is after delegates, this hunt in New England indicates a suspected weakness in the West and South. None of Mr. Bryan's "enemies" had supposed he was short of delegates. Pretty much everything in the Union was conceded to him without a contest, except, perhaps, New York. But if it is electoral votes, actual states, that he seeks in New England, is not this winter campaign another and startling proof that Bryan is a man utterly destitute of political judgment, a light-headed visionary, tipsy with fatuous ambition, who is dancing through the land at the head of a pack of greater fools than himself?

If Mr. McKinley should insist on making a thorough personal campaign in Texas, sober-minded Republicans would insist that a commission de lunatico pass upon his case before they were asked to re-nominate him. The present leaders of the Democratic party probably look upon Bryan's proposed New England escapade as a proof of his courage and his smartness.—[New York Times.

DEATH OF REV. HENRY W. CONANT.

Rev. Henry W. Conant, formerly of Providence, died Thursday at Somerville, Mass. He was a member of the New England Southern Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church and was for many years prominently identified with temperance work in this state.

Rev. Mr. Conant was within two months of 75 years of age. He entered the pastorate of the church at an early age, and most of the 18 years that he was a pastor in this Conference was spent in churches in Connecticut. His last pastorate was at Millville, Mass., where he remained for two years and then became agent of the Rhode Island Temperance Union. He held that office from 1869 until 1887, conducting an active campaign, and since 1888 had been in a superannuated relation to the Conference. A daughter was prominent in church work in Providence and married Sam Walter Foss, a well known New England poet, and alumnus of Brown University.

AROUND RHODE ISLAND.

The fire department had a hard tussle with a blaze in the basement of Edward P. Anthony's drug store, corner Thayer and Angell streets, Providence, yesterday. In some unknown manner the blaze originated in that part of the basement where large quantities of gasoline, benzine and other explosives were stored, and when the firemen arrived they found a lively job at hand. Through the basement windows and by the rear cellar door lines of hose were laid. In a few minutes the blaze seemed to have been conquered, but suddenly it started again and ran across the cellar. There was considerable water on the floor and the flames followed it. This showed Deputy Chief Hill that naphtha or some other fluid that flowed from cans or barrels had ignited. It caused an intense heat and there was great danger of explosions and probable destruction of the building, to say nothing of the possibilities of injury to the men. There were but two things to do. One was to leave the cellar as quickly as possible and the other was to resort to unusual methods. Deputy Hill chose to hang to the fire. He ordered the men to remove their rubber coats and with them attack the fierce flames. The men followed orders, and, after a quarter of an hour of the hardest kind of battling beat out the fire.

The dense fog that settled over Providence yesterday morning was the cause of a head-on collision between two electric cars on Willard's hill. There were several passengers in one car and all were more or less shaken up and frightened. The most seriously injured person was Motorman Herbert Waterman. He was taken to the Rhode Island Hospital, where upon examination he was discovered to be not badly hurt and went to his home. Three women were shaken up and four men, two of whom sustained lacerations, one on his jaw and the other on his forehead. The hurts of all the passengers were trivial.

George W. Easterbrooks, the veteran newsdealer in Bristol, died suddenly yesterday at his home on State street in that town, at the age of 73 years. As a merchant covering a period of about 50 years the deceased earned the good-will of his fellow townspeople from his strict integrity and affable temperament. When a young man he married Miss Catherine D. Gladding of Newport, who died May 13, 1878. Five children, three sons and two daughters, were born of this marriage and are residents of Bristol. He married the second time Miss Alice Church, daughter of the late Henry Church of Bristol.

Wednesday evening Mr. and Mrs. Horace W. Bixby of Little Compton celebrated the fiftieth anniversary of their marriage at their home in that town, where they have resided for the past 41 years. About 150 relatives and friends attended, among them Mr. and Mrs. John May of Randolph, Mass., who recently celebrated their golden wedding. Mr. May is a brother of Mrs. Bixby.

Cut the rabbit into small joints as follows: First, take off the hind legs even with the loin, then remove the shoulders, split the head into halves, divide the loins into six pieces; trim these neatly without waste and place them in a saute pan with two ounces of clarified butter, pepper and salt. Fry them to a light brown color with rather a brisk fire and add a tablespoonful of chopped fine herbs, consisting of mushrooms, truffles, parsley and shallot; then put the lid on and set the rabbit over a slow fire for about ten minutes longer; next pour off all the grease, add a large ladleful of cullis sauce, some scallops of mushrooms and truffles, two dozen small quenelles of rabbit, a small piece of glaze, a little nutmeg and the juice of half a lemon; simmer the whole together on a stove fire for three minutes, then pile up the pieces of rabbit in the dish, arrange the ragout over this in neat groups and pour the sauce over this entree.

CHICAGO ARCHITECTURE.

But if Western artists and writers have a moral responsibility in regard to their section, what shall be said of the architects, of whom the city has an aspiring and picturesque company? That, in spite of the ugliness of Chicago, which is an admitted fact, they have one honest achievement to their credit. They have almost created that important form of construction, commercial architecture. The "sky scraper" of steel, glass, and terra cotta—a daring contrivance, and well suited to the place and its needs—has appeared here in its perfection. Perhaps the ideal office building of the country is the Marquette building, which is not merely adapted to all the demands of such a building, and which, furthermore, is ornamented consistently. The exploits of the distinguished Jesuit whose name the building bears are reproduced in mosaics and mural decorations about the rotunda; the wild animals of the territory which the traveler and priest explored live again in the bold work of Kemeys, the animal sculptor, and the Indians among whom Marquette dwelt live again in O'Neill's famous medallions. As perfect in its way is the wholesale house of Marshall Field; and there are in the country few buildings of solid masonry more substantial, convenient, and effective than the Auditorium, with its hotel and vast audience chamber, and few edifices with a facade so calm and noble as that presented by the First Church of Christ, on Drexel Boulevard.

The homes of Chicago, to be sure, cannot be said to have any typical or general style, unless it be the hideous fashion which puts up a front of stone 25 feet wide, and confesses to the fraud with 200 feet of common brick wall on the other three sides, broken with fire escapes and rear porches. Were the city more closely built, these crimes against sincerity might be partly concealed; but there is still space—space, which, like the marshes of Glynn, is all-revealing. Even the lavish homes on the boulevards, luxurious as they are, are lacking in harmonious effect. Money has been almost recklessly spent upon them, and there they stand in bewildering diversity, imitating all manner of things, from Florentine palaces to feudal strongholds, and reaching for miles along the drives of the three divisions of the city and far out into the country.—[Mrs. Elia W. Peattie, in the Atlantic.

WILSON, LEE AND WHEELER.

The report that the President desires to appoint Generals Wilson, Lee and Wheeler brigadier generals in the regular army and then place them on the retired list has evoked much cordial approval on the part of the public. The act, it is considered, would be at once a graceful and a just recognition of timely and conspicuous public service. The three men are soldiers by education. All are graduates of West Point, and all wore Uncle Sam's uniform in their young manhood. When the civil war divided the country against itself, General Wilson championed the Federal cause, while Generals Lee and Wheeler offered their swords to the Confederacy. All three rose to distinction in the struggle. When the re-united country called for champions against a common foe, these old-time comrades went to the front, all three wearing the blue again, and were proud to wear it. All three have worn it with honor, and the present proposition is that they shall be privileged to wear it, and enjoy the emoluments that go with it, to the end.

The suggestion is a good one. It embodies sentiment no less than more material considerations. The man of military training and instincts is rarely ever a man of business thrift. And it so happens that none of these three men is a man of fortune. They have led active and eminent and useful lives, but have no estate to show for it. To each of them therefore the salary of a retired officer of good grade would be helpful and doubtless welcome, and that each has more than deserved such provision no man of the proper feeling will question.—[Washington Star.

AFTER THANKSGIVING DAY.

Ah, did I dream? Was it a vision gay
That swept before mine eyes and fled away?
Was it reality, that wondrous store
Of pies and turkey, cakes and sweets galore,
And cider, too, that erst with stealthy straw
I from the barrel had been wont to draw,
Now placed, with all the rest, that blissful day,
At my sweet will, with none to say me nay?

Ah, woe is me! It was no vision rare
From such delights that seized me unaware—
No dream is this, that fills my frame with woe,
And in mine own apartments lays me low,
While bottles and prescriptions ranged about
Remind that man is mortal, and without
The family physician goes his way
To other victims of Thanksgiving day.

THE OLD WARMIN' PAN.

Nine o'clock and up stairs; oh! the breath-freezing room,
With its audible silence and tangible gloom!
Oh, the shivers and dreads of that tortuous hall
Where we bumped our poor heads on the down-sloping wall—
And the demons that danced down our candlelight lane
To the squeaky quadrille of the old weather vane!
But ah! every terror, each recess of dread
We forgot in the depths of our billowy bed,
When, snuggled therein on the sinkaway plan,
In Dreamland 'twas Spring, thank the Old Warmin' Pan.

A well-won protection from bogies and ghosts!
From the furthest confines they might marshal their hosts,
But no spook in the whole vast domain of Upstairs
Could approach, undefied, this, the surest of bairs.
Deep down in our feathers, 'twixt lavendered sheets,
Peeking over the counterpane's regular pleats,
We laughed all the bugaboos square in the face,
Till they made their retreat in the hush of disgrace—
Poor things! they were awful, but blame them who can,
For no doubt they begrudged us our Old Warmin' Pan.

Oh, the Old Warmin' Pan! How the memories hold—
Those days were of silver, those nights were of gold,
And each homely object my childhood held dear
Has grown to an idol through many a year,
The starlight, the stillness, the frost-gleaming pane,
The weird-weaving shadows, the wind's low refrain,
The hand at the door and the step in the hall,
The low, gentle sound of the motherly call;
For the lack in the child is the love in the man
Toward the genius that wielded the Old Warmin' Pan.

DAVID KENNEDY, M. D.,

Of Rondout, (City of Kingston,) N. Y.,

SAYS:

"For over twenty-five years I have constantly been engaged in the active discharge of my profession as physician and surgeon. During that career I have perfected an alterative medicine, the FAVORITE REMEDY, upon the value of which I am willing to, and do stake my personal and professional reputation."

"Favorite Remedy is the greatest discovery Dr. Kennedy has ever made."

It is today a standard medicine with thirty years of cures to its credit.

ALLOW NO ONE TO DECEIVE YOU WITH THEIR CROWNING EFFORTS, LATEST ACHIEVEMENTS OR BRILLIANT FRUITS, COUNTERFEITS, IMITATIONS OR JUST AS GOOD. THEY ARE BUT EXPERIMENTS AND ENDANGER YOUR HEALTH.

"Most physicians are ready enough to give their services when a family is too poor to pay, but it occasionally happens that there is a proprietary medicine which does all or more than a physician could do.

"We know of only one such medicine—namely DR. DAVID KENNEDY'S FAVORITE REMEDY" for "such troubles as Kidney and Bladder Complaints, Rheumatism, Dyspepsia, Liver Complaint, Constipation and the sicknesses peculiar to women.

"Sufferers from these difficulties often become so discouraged as to have no heart to take any more medicine. To all such, Dr. Kennedy has only to say that if he were personally called upon to prescribe at all, he would prescribe Favorite Remedy.

"There are other proprietary medicines in the market, made by a person with the same name and initial as my own, and I have reason to believe that the two are often confounded in people's minds, and that the other articles spoken of have been substituted, either through accident or design, when the latter have been asked for, or desired. To avoid this, please ask for Dr. David Kennedy's Favorite Remedy, prepared in Rondout, N. Y., and accept nothing else in its place.

"There are two proprietors of similar names, but they are not connected or associated in business, or otherwise.

"Those who wish consultation or advice as to their own special case, can have the same entirely free of charge. Simply direct: 'DR. DAVID KENNEDY, RONDOUT, CITY OF KINGSTON, N. Y.,' " where all communications will be treated with strictest professional confidence.

"To avoid mistakes, Dr. Kennedy would beg you to remember that the name of his medicine is Favorite Remedy, that it is manufactured at Rondout, N. Y., and especially not to forget the Doctor's name David Kennedy, M. D., and address Rondout, N. Y.; he has no other address."

SATURDAY, DECEMBER 2, 1899.

THE INFLUENCE OF THE THANKSGIVING FESTIVAL.

In looking back over the record of history no one can fail to discover that Thanksgiving day has been an important one in our country. It was in humble recognition of divine providence in the interference with the affairs of men that the day was first appointed, and while we may not discern the distinctness of that recognition as directly as in the past, we still believe that God has a place in history not by miraculous interpositions but by shaping events so as to bring about his purposes. The President of the United States has repeatedly confessed his faith in the doctrine of divine providence, for which he has been held up somewhat to ridicule, and, in a few cases, to contempt. But certain it is that neither Washington nor Lincoln, nor Grant, nor McKinley has been willing to allow signal blessings to go unrecognized as coming from a divine hand. The fact is that the principle is interwoven with the nature of the American people and cannot be eradicated.

For instance, the first Thanksgiving in Massachusetts Bay colony sprang from the recognition of a special act of divine providence. The winter of 1630 was a very trying one, and the vessel despatched in Ireland, not returning, was believed to be lost. People had to live upon ground nuts and acorns, and it was a feast when they could get a meal of fish. Johnson, in his quaint "Wonder-Working Providence," says that once a day, as the tide gave way, the women went in search of clams and mussels and discovered much of the provision Christ had formerly made for many thousands of His followers in the wilderness. One woman said: "My husband hath traveled as far as Plymouth, near 40 miles, and hath with great toil brought a little corn home with him, and, before that is spent, the Lord will assuredly provide." Another declared: "Our last peck of meal is now in the oven at home a-baking, and many of our godly neighbors have quite spent all, and we owe one loaf or half little we have." A day of fasting and prayer was appointed. But just when the governor himself had the last loaves of bread in the oven, in came the long-looked-for vessel, the abundant provisions were distributed, and instead of a fast February 22, 1631, was made Thanksgiving day.

In New Netherlands Thanksgiving day was observed about 20 years after the settlement of the country. The Dutch records at the office of the secretary of state contain proclamations of Thanksgiving days in 1645 and 1655. The latter of these, issued when Peter Stuyvesant was governor, is the more interesting, in expressing what shall be the manner of the observance of the day and in forbidding certain secular and worldly activities and pleasures. After enumerating the blessings of the year the "director general and council of New Netherlands" proclaim Wednesday, March 7, A. D. 1677, as Thanksgiving day. They charge "our subjects at the place where divine service is usually held, in the forenoon and in the afternoon, to listen there to God's word, and then to praise and thank him for the favors, blessings and benefits which His Divine Majesty has been pleased to shower upon us during the last year and during the whole period of our life."

But it was not until after the war of the Rebellion that Thanksgiving day became a national institution. Heretofore it had been comparatively local, though observed by many of the people of the United States. In the South and West it was scarcely known at all, for their institutions were not prominently based on religious instinct. During the dark days of the war of the sixties days of fasting and prayer were proclaimed, and in response to blessings received days of thanksgiving were designated. Some of us remember the first national Thanksgiving, and how it was regarded by the local governors of some states as intruding, to a mild way, upon their prerogatives, and the discussions that grew out of the same.

But this controversy was not of long duration. Under the influence of Abraham Lincoln, who was the first of the Presidents to proclaim a strictly national holiday in this line, and in view of the fitness of the appointment, the request of the President was soon esteemed paramount and accepted by the people. As at first this was construed as asking the Confederates to return thanks for a defeat of the cause that they regarded sacred and holy, it was celebrated mildly, to say the least. But since the Southern people have come to regard the triumph of the Union in another light as the greatest good that could possibly come to the country the influence of the Thanksgiving day has been felt in all sections. And we are now a united people in its observance.

Thanksgiving day has now become an annual anniversary and its omission will scarcely be possible in any part of the country. It may be that its significance is rather historical than religious or social. Its survival from the earliest Colonial times and the records that have come down to us concerning the appointment and observance of these feasts have a special interest. They serve to throw light upon the struggles of the pioneers, they give delightful glimpses in their genuine and hearty social life of former generations, and connect that life with the highest prosperity of the present too strongly to be without significance. Complaint is made by some that the religious element has been eliminated largely, and that Thanksgiving day is an occasion of feasts and sports rather than of prayer and fasting, but this is somewhat indicative of the tendency of the people. Days of fasting and prayer that have been appointed in the past are now chiefly abandoned, and Thanksgiving cannot possibly be made to take their place.

Kentucky is face to face with a revolution. The Goebelites no longer make any secret of their confidence of being able to control the state board of election commissioners and to compel the issuance of certificates to Goebel and the other Democratic candidates, and the Republicans will resist in every way the seating of the Democrats. Governor Bradley will not recognize the state board as having any power, and on the face of the returns showing the Republicans to have a majority of the votes cast at the recent election will recognize Taylor as governor and administer the oath of office to him. Goebel and his followers will not accept this condition of affairs, but just what will follow is as yet a secret, though it is safe to predict that having gone so far as they have in the struggle to secure the governorship, they will not hesitate to resort to force of arms to gain their point, and then there will be trouble.

It is reported from Washington that the Republican members of the Senate finance committee will frame their finance bill so as to substantially follow the lines of the House bill, and Senator Platt of Connecticut is authority for the statement that there is such complete agreement regarding the purposes to be achieved by the sound-money members of both houses that no serious conflict is expected in any case. Whatever differences exist between the Senate and House bills will be adjusted by four Republicans, all of whom are aggressive friends of the gold standard. Senator Aldrich of Rhode Island and Senator Allison of Iowa will be the Senate Republicans appointed to reach this agreement.

A number of residents of Middletown and Portsmouth are said to be deeply interested in the Investors Trust Company of Philadelphia, a rapid-money-making concern which has recently failed in view of the disclosure of the Franklin syndicate in Brooklyn. The company for a time paid quarterly dividends of 12 per cent, and several of the Island investors have, it is understood, received in dividends nearly their entire investments. Others who were encouraged by the success of the earlier subscribers, and have put in their money more recently, will probably lose the whole amount, a number having invested so lately that there have been no dividends paid since. It is evidently another case of the early bird.

The Fall River wage question has been settled. The manufacturers yesterday offered the operatives a 10 per cent advance in wages, and pledged their efforts in behalf of a sliding scale in the hope of effectually checking any labor troubles in the future. Last night, with the entire body of textile workers of Fall River in favor of the proposition, four of the five unions, representing a membership of 10,000, voted unanimously to accept their employers' offer.

The success of the Marconi system of wireless telegraphy was clearly shown on the return of the inventor on steamship St. Paul to England. An operator of the system was stationed at the Needles waiting for a message from the steamer at sea, and after some delay the signal sounded and the operator talked with the inventor 66 miles out at sea. The message was clear and distinct, and the successful operation at so great a distance shows conclusively the possibilities of the wireless telegraphy.

The park commissioners of New York are very cautious about admitting automobiles to Central Park, and have issued permits to four fortunate individuals, who are "skilful and careful drivers," to use electric motor carriages, but no permits have yet been issued to owners of gasoline or steam automobiles. These will be admitted later if the commissioners find they do not frighten horses.

Former Congressman W. C. Owens, who defeated Colonel Breckinridge in 1851, has been nominated for the Congressional vacancy in Kentucky. He hoisted the Goebel ticket in the recent state campaign and his nomination was secured by a combination of Republicans and anti-Goebel Democrats. The campaign will be fought out on state issues, and a lively one it will undoubtedly be.

The Republican leaders of the House of Representatives have practically agreed that Mr. Roberts of Utah will not be sworn in as a member of Congress Monday, the question of his eligibility being referred to a special committee which will report at once, and it is expected that upon this committee's report the Utah seat will be declared vacant.

Orders have been issued for a diminution of the troops in Cuba by the advice and influence of General Wood, who says that the reduction can safely be made at this time. General Wood is evidently the right man for the right place, and we will be pleased to see him in charge of the whole island, so far as Americans are concerned.

General Wood denies the report that he is to be made surgeon-general of the United States army. He says his relations with the medical department have ended and that his future duty with the army will be in the regular line. He evidently expects to be appointed a brigadier general in the regular army.

The news from the Transvaal continues favorable to the British army, but it is to be remembered that the tidings come through British sources, and with censored press reports nothing is really authentic. Still, it looks as though the British had the advantage in the later fighting.

Rear Admiral Sampson is being very extensively entertained in Boston, but he always has to do something to entertain his entertainers. He is doing a good deal of talking for a silent man, as he has been called, but his talks are always sensible and helpful.

The Boston Herald has made a canvass among Congressmen for opinions concerning the Roberts case. In the returns we are pleased to find Rhode Island members unanimous in opposition to Roberts as the Utah representative.

Congress meets Monday, and the session promises to be one of the greatest importance.

THE MAGAZINES.

The cover of the December Century is suggestive of the approaching Christmas season, the central figure of the design, by Henry Hutt, being a kneeling angel, with outspread wings. The brief opening poem, "The Old Master," is decorated by Edward Edwards, and illustrated by Louis Loeb in a frontispiece as seasonable as the cover, and, like the cover, printed in tints. "The Christmas Dancers," a poem embodying a Saxon legend, is accompanied by several full-page pictures by Mr. Hutt. The holiday spirit breathes as well in Jacob A. Riis's story of New York's East Side, "The Kid Hangs up His Stocking;" "The Kid Hangs up His Stocking;" Dr. Weir Mitchell's poem, "King Christmas and Master New Year;" the reproduction of Alden Weir's "A Christmas Tree," in the American Artists Series, and Thomas A. Janvier's "A Provencal Christmas Postscript," being further legendary lore of Provence, derived at first hand from the poets and peasants, among whom the author has passed several recent years. Conspicuous art features of the number are Cole's engraving of Sir Thomas Lawrence's Lord Derby, and a full-page reproduction of the bust of French's equestrian statue of Washington. Sir Walter Besant begins a series of papers on life in East London, a subject that no writer knows more intimately. In telling the story of an imaginary girl of the tenement-houses, he is aided by the pencils of Joseph Pennell and Phil May, the best known of pictorial interpreters of the London slums. Attention will be attracted to Marian Warner Wildman's poem, "A Hill prayer," by its decorative designs by Maxfield Parrish, and the editorial note that it won the first prize in the Century college competition this year. A famous nature, but one unfamiliar in the pages of American magazines, is that of Henryk Sienkiewicz, author of "Quo Vadis," who contributes a prose-poem, "The Judgment of Peter and Paul on Olympus." In the second instalment of his study of Oliver Cromwell, Mr. Morley takes up his hero at the beginning of his parliamentary career, and carries him forward to the call to arms in 1642. The voyage from Samoa to Australia and Tasmania is that part of Captain Slocum's odyssey which he described this month, in the fourth chapter of "Sailing Alone Around the World." Dr. Weir Mitchell continues his revelations of the seamy side of the medical profession in "The Autobiography of a Quack;" Ernest Seton-Thompson, as author and artist both, gives a further glimpse of a man-killing bear, in "The Biography of a Grizzly," and other contributors of fiction are Margaret Sutton Briscoe, Harry Stillwell Edwards, Gelett Burgess and Virginia Woodward Cloud. "Zionism" is explained by Professor Richard Gotthell of Columbia University, who interprets it as "a few mendons yearning to be better Jews, in order to be better men." And last to be named, but not least to be enjoyed, is John Burroughs on "The Art of Seeing Things"—an art in which he himself is a passed master.

The Christmas cover of Every Month is attractive in its simple beauty. The contents carry out the promise of the cover. A novel article on the "Human Side of a Big Department Store" is profusely illustrated and contains information which will be astonishing to the ordinary customer of the bargain sales, with its mass of facts and details concerning the life of the girl behind the counter. "Hostesses of a By-Gone Day" is a description of some celebrated New York women whose hospitality was lavish and who were the foremost entertainers in metropolitan life a generation ago. This is accompanied by a number of rare photographs never before printed. "Forest Giants," an account of the famous redwood trees of California, is illustrated by several special photographs. "Scenes from the Plays of the Month," gives a page of illustrations of the most dramatic situations of the newest plays. The magazine also furnishes three short stories, "A Christmas Outside," a short descriptive story of prison life; "The Eternal Feminine," a clever tale exemplifying the vagaries of a woman's mind, and presenting a problem to the reader which will be as puzzling as Stockton's "The Lady and the Tiger," and "Her Little White Shoes," a story of the Thames. The fashion article also holds its usual important place and contains information gathered especially from inspection and interviews with the leading importers and designers. The music, consisting of four pieces or 14 pages, goes beyond the usual in popularity and comprises "Lotta," Valse Lente, by William First, whose "Bubble Waltzes" and intermezzos are known by every musician; "In the Shadow of the Rockies," a pathetic ballad; "Jasper Johnson's Jubilee," cake walk and two-step, with a swing that forces the hearers to tap time to its every movement, and "Sweet Savannah," by Paul Dresser.

A DISAPPOINTED ANARCHIST.

There sailed from New York recently for Europe a personage whose room in this country is far preferable to her presence, and whose departure is a most welcome event. This is Emma Goldman, agitator and anarchist, who was concerned, it will be remembered, in the murderous attack upon H. C. Frick in Pittsburg several years ago. She goes away thoroughly disgusted with the American laborer. She calls him a slave, a besotted brute, indifferent to his sufferings and willing to kiss the hands of his masters, the capitalists. She has tried for 10 years to arouse him to an appropriate sense of his wrongs. She has lectured, agitated, demonstrated. But in vain. When the police have allowed her to talk, within the license of the law, she has faced unmoved audiences. There is no hope for such stolid creatures, and so Emma sails away, perhaps to agitate elsewhere, and maybe to find a less genial despotism than that of the United States.

Emma Goldman may be sincere. It is known that some of her prototypes are sincere. But the American workingmen are equally sincere in their appreciation of good times and their understanding of the American law and the American traditions. There is no more intelligent class of laborers in the world than those in the United States. There is nowhere else a similar body of toilers with as high a rate of literacy, as high a scale of wages, as complete a year's working record, as few debts, as large a bank account, as broad an opportunity for betterment. There is, in short, nowhere else as poor a field for the tillage of the anarchist as in these states, despite the teachings of Altgeld and other domesticated demagogues.

Emma Goldman's visit here has not been fruitless, however she may rave over her failure. It has shown the world the sterility of the American soil as regards the seed of discord and destruction. Europe swarms with anarchists, who would eagerly pour across the Atlantic with their lectures in their pockets and their red flags up their sleeves, eager to take the stump or the platform. The American workingman is always well supplied with cash, and he might perhaps be persuaded to spend some of it in entrance fees. Some time ago it was proposed to import Louise Michel, the firebrand of French anarchism, to instruct the Americans as to their true duty. But the project fell on unappreciative ears and it was forthwith dropped. Emma Goldman will carry back to Europe the story of her failure and disappointments, the zeal of the police in preserving order and public decency, the prosperity of the American laborers in which they revel too content to be lured into the red ranks. She may give this republic such a bad name among her own kind that they will henceforth give it up as hopelessly prosperous.—[Washington Star.

THE WEATHER.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 2, 8 A. M.—For New England—Fair; colder tonight; Sunday fair; fresh westerly to northerly winds.

BOSTON AND VICINITY.

BOSTON, Dec. 2, 8 A. M.—For Boston and vicinity—Fair weather tonight and Sunday; colder; northerly winds.

WEATHER CONDITIONS.

The storm which was central over the Lake region yesterday morning has moved northeastward to the lower St. Lawrence valley and died out. Light rains have been general during the past 24 hours in all Atlantic coast districts, the Lake regions, the St. Lawrence valley, the northern Rocky Mountain and northern Pacific coast states. Today the weather continues partly cloudy to cloudy in those districts, but with light rains at only a few scattered stations. The pressure continues low in all sections east of the Rocky mountains, but in the Rocky Mountain districts and on the Pacific coast it has increased. In the Canadian Northwest the temperature is 10 degrees; but lower, with minima of 10 degrees; but in the United States the temperature is generally above the normal for the season.

Delightful Mexican Tours.

Mexico, with its grand natural scenery, its semi-tropical climate, its interesting history, and its strange civilization, is a most attractive region for tourists. The sights of that remarkable country can be seen to the best possible advantage in connection with Messrs. Raymond & Whitcomb's excursions. Those enterprising tourist managers are forming parties to leave Boston Jan. 11, Feb. 1 and 22. The travelers will stop at various places in the Southern States, and in Mexico visit a dozen or more of the principal cities, spending a week in the City of Mexico, with a side trip to Cuernavaca, and making trips down into the tropics, over both the Tampico and the Vera Cruz lines. On the return, Californ and the Vera Cruz lines. On the return, Californ nia is to be visited. The journey will be made in a special Pullman vestibuled train, with a dining car, and only a limited number of passengers can be taken. An illustrated circular of Mexico, with a full description of the tour, will be sent by Raymond & Whitcomb, 296 Washington street, opposite School street, Boston, to any address on application.

JOHN I. BLAIR.

Death of the Wealthy Iron and Railroad Man.

BLAIRSTOWN, N. J., Dec. 2.—John I. Blair, one of the richest men in the United States, died at his home here late last night, after an illness of several years. He was 87 years old.

John I. Blair was born near Beividere, N. J., in 1802. Until he was 11 years of age, his life was that of an ordinary farmer's boy. After leaving school he entered the general store of his cousin at Hope, N. J. At the age of 19 he came to Blairstown, then known as Geared Hill, and opened a general store. His first large speculation was the purchase of an apparently valueless cargo of cotton, on which he realized a profit of $15,000.

Mr. Blair aided the first attempts to make iron with anthracite coal at Stanton Hollow, afterwards Scranton, Penn., and became interested in the Scranton Coal and Iron Company. This company obtained a charter for a railroad from Scranton to Great Bend, called Leggett's railroad, and which was to connect with the Erie road. This was the real beginning of the Delaware, Lackawanna & Western railroad. In all the successive stages in the building of the road, Mr. Blair was the master spirit.

Before the war there was little or no demand for iron, but Mr. Blair's company with wonderful sagacity went right on manufacturing and piling it up. Suddenly iron rails rose $50, $80 and then $100 a ton. Mr. Blair, in referring to it, said: "There is no gold mine in the world that could have yielded money faster than our iron works did then."

In 1859 Mr. Blair was in Iowa and examined the route of a railroad which had a very large land grant. The projectors applied to him for 40 miles of rails. The iron company would furnish them on the security of the land and bonds. The directors thought a scheme to build a road in that remote country utterly visionary, but Mr. Blair concluded he would furnish the iron himself. After he had delivered some of it, he learned that the projectors were issuing unearned bonds to themselves and were otherwise defrauding him. Upon threatening to take back his iron, they agreed to place everything in his hands, and to allow him to build the 40 miles of road. He did so, and afterwards built more, making 120 miles all told, having in the meantime made Oakes Ames of Massachusetts his partner. The roads at once did a tremendous business on account of the great tide of immigration west, which was then just beginning.

He next joined Oakes Ames and others in getting the charter of the Union Pacific railroad, and built the first 100 miles westward from Omaha. In rapid succession, he built an extension of his Iowa road to Omaha, then the Sioux City & Pacific, the Iowa Falls & Sioux City and other trans-Missouri roads, which have since consolidated with main lines. His system was first to construct roads on cash payments only, then to lease them for 33 or 36 per cent on their earnings, and finally to sell them when he could get his price for them. His success was marvelous, and he leaves a fortune estimated at between $40,000,000 and $80,000,000.

Mr. Blair was postmaster at Blairstown for nearly 40 years.

CHARLES POTTER, JR.

Death of the Inventor of a Well Known Printing Press.

PLAINFIELD, N. J., Dec. 2.—Charles Potter, Jr., the printing press inventor, died at his home in Plainfield, N. J., today, from a complication of diseases. Mr. Potter was born in Madison county, N. Y., in 1824. Early in life he went to Westerly, R. I., and engaged in the printing press business. Later he became associated with the Babcock Printing Press Company and subsequently went to work for the Walter Scott Press company. While with the Scott company Mr. Potter invented the press which bears his name. He amassed a fortune in business. He is survived by a widow and two married daughters.

JAMESTOWN.

[Regular correspondence of the News.]

The town council held a special meeting at 12:30 o'clock today, to take action on the resignation of Mr. Harry Stadler as a member of the commission on the Caswell property. All the members were present with the exception of Mr. John E. Braymam.

Mr. Stadler's resignation was accepted and Captain Christopher L. Champlin was appointed to take his place on the committee. Mr. Watson had seen Mr. Champlin and secured his consent to the use of his name. The members of the committee now are Captain J. P. Cotton, Mr. Silas Carr and Captain Christopher L. Champlin.

Mr. Alexander Tennant, who was given the contract to paint the water tank on the ferry wharf, notified the town clerk that he did not care for the job, and accordingly Mr. T. C. Watson was appointed a committee to secure some one to do the work.

Rev. Mr. Burrows of Providence, who is temporarily in charge of St. Matthew's Church, being unable to preach here tomorrow, Mr. Henry W. Clarke of Newport will conduct the services.

Rev. Reginald Pearce, who preached several times recently at St. Matthew's, has been called to a church in Connecticut.

Miss Phebe Clarke of Wakefield is guest of Mr. and Mrs. D. C. Watson.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Littlefield left today for a visit to Block Island.

Mr. George Gardner has gone to Block Island on a hunting trip.

There was a short snowstorm at about 2 o'clock this morning.

Mr. Elijah Anthony is confined to his home in Providence by illness.

Mr. Frederic Anthony returned today from Providence, where he had been to see his father.

Mr. William P. Buffum was in town today.

Mr. A. W. Luther went to Boston today.

ELKS' MEMORIAL.

The annual memorial service of the Order of Elks will be held by the lodges throughout the country tomorrow. The service by Newport Lodge, No. 104, will be as usual in the lodge room in Newton hall, at 5 p. m., and seats will be provided for as many visitors as can be accommodated in the hall after the members are provided for. The order of exercises will be as follows:

The following who have been members of Newport Lodge have died since its organization: Robert H. McIntosh, Charles H. Lawton, John J. Flood, Joseph Bradford, Frank Morgan, Frank C. Peirce, Charles H. Caswell, William F. Townsend, Charles Pinard, John Waters, Edward F. Dunbar, Edward Newton, Benjamin J. Bryer, Peter Knowe, John W. Rogers, Winfield S. Tompkins, Thomas J. Smith. Of these the last five have died within the past year, and Messrs. Rogers, Tompkins and Smith were charter members.

LOCAL BRIEFS.

—Mr. Herreshoff, the Bristol boat builder, and his sister were in town today.

—John D. Walsh, boatswain's mate, attached to the Monongahela, who has been spending a few days here, returned to New York last night. Mr. Walsh came to Newport to attend a wedding.

—The latest casualty list from General Otis at Manila, given in a despatch received from Washington this afternoon, contains the name of Harry Hiscock, sergeant, Company L, Twenty-sixth infantry, mortally wounded in the abdomen.

—Mr. John Gilpin has resigned as a director of the American Confectionery Company, with headquarters at Springfield, Mass. Mr. L. G. Savage of this city has been offered the presidency of the company, but it is understood will decline. Messrs. Gilpin and Savage will remain with the company as stockholders.

FACTS ABOUT EX-PRESIDENTS.

Two ex-Presidents of the United States are living, Cleveland and Harrison.

Before the expiration of John Adams's term, 1801, there was no ex-President living. Washington having died December, 1799.

During Jefferson's administration Adams was the ex-President. Both died on the same day, July 4, 1826. Both were ex-Presidents during the administration of Madison and Monroe and a part of the administration of J. Q. Adams.

When Monroe was President, the three ex-Presidents were Adams, Jefferson and Madison.

J. Q. Adams became President in 1825. At that time Adams, Jefferson, Madison and Monroe were living. But before the expiration of J. Q. Adams's term, 1829, only Madison and Monroe were living.

During Jackson's first administration Madison, Monroe and J. Q. Adams were the living ex-Presidents. Before the expiration of Jackson's second administration only J. Q. Adams remained as former President.

When Van Buren was President, J. Q. Adams and Jackson were the living ex-Presidents.

During William Henry Harrison's term of one month, J. Q. Adams, Jackson and Van Buren, were the living ex-Presidents.

John Tyler, as Vice President, succeeded Harrison and was in office from 1841 to 1845. The ex-Presidents living during his term were J. Q. Adams, Jackson and Van Buren.

While Polk was President, the living ex-Presidents were J. Q. Adams, Jackson, Van Buren and Tyler. But before the expiration of Polk's term Van Buren and Tyler only remained.

Taylor's term lasted less than five months. In that time Van Buren, Tyler and Polk were living, although Polk died 25 days before Taylor, thereby leaving Van Buren and Tyler living ex-Presidents.

When Fillmore was President Van Buren and Tyler were still living.

With Pierce as President, there were three living ex-Presidents, Van Buren, Tyler and Fillmore.

When Buchanan was President, Van Buren, Tyler, Fillmore and Pierce were living.

During Lincoln's term of office, Fillmore, Pierce and Buchanan were living.

In the administration of Johnson, Buchanan died, leaving Fillmore and Pierce.

During Grant's first term, Fillmore and Johnson were living. Before the expiration of his second term there was no living ex-President.

Grant was the only living ex-President while Hayes was at the White House.

During Garfield's short term Grant and Hayes were living.

In the administration of Arthur, Grant and Hayes were still living.

During Cleveland's first term, Grant, Hayes and Arthur were living. Before the expiration of that term only Hayes remained.

With Benjamin Harrison as President, Hayes and Cleveland were living, but before the expiration of Harrison's term only Cleveland remained as a living ex-President.

In Cleveland's second term there was but one ex-President living, Harrison.

During McKinley's term, the two living ex-Presidents are Cleveland and Harrison.

Three times in the history of the country have four ex-Presidents been living at the same time. Frequently three; once there was one ex-President living during the incumbency of his predecessor; twice none.—[Chicago Inter-Ocean.

SENATE FINANCE BILL.

Likely to Differ Materially from the House Measure.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 2.—The Republican members of the Senate committee on finance met today in accordance with the call of the chairman, Senator Aldrich, to consider a financial bill to be presented at the approaching session of Congress. There were present Senators Aldrich, Allison, Platt of Connecticut, Wolcott and Burrows. Mr. Platt of New York was the only absentee.

Secretary Gage appeared before the committee and was in consultation with the members until after 1 o'clock. He went over the general situation with them, making various recommendations as to the details of the measures to be introduced. One of the points discussed was the advisability of a general refunding of the bonded debt of the country at a lower rate of interest than now prevailing. The indications are that a feature of this kind will be incorporated in the Senate bill.

It can be definitely stated that the Senate measure will make provision for the maintenance of the gold standard. It is also quite definitely understood that it will be an entirely different measure from that prepared by the House Republican caucus committee. It will necessarily cover much of the same ground, but will differ from the House bill in phraseology and detail and cover some points not included in that measure. This difference will have the effect of requiring a conference committee to settle the differences in case both bills are passed, each by its respective house.

GAINING GROUND.

Hernandist Revolution in Venezuela Spreading.

[Correspondence of the Associated Press.]

WILLEMSTAD, Island of Curacoa, Nov. 27.—The Hernandist revolution is gaining ground in Venezuela from day to day and is supported by the leading members of the commercial and financial worlds, who supply the revolutionists with all the arms and money they need.

El Mocho—that is, General Hernandez—is at present at Tocuyo, a short distance from Valencia, at the head of an army of from 6,000 to 8,000 men, and a great battle is expected to occur at any time.

Castro's army is under the command of a negro named Benjamin Ruiz, otherwise known as Raphael Bolivar, a Columbian on whose head a price was put by the American government at the time of the burning of Colon, in 1885.

NOT MANY MOOSE.

Fewer Killed in Maine This Year Than Since 1895.

BANGOR, Me., Dec. 2. The moose-hunting season in Maine ended Thursday at midnight, and the returns thus far received make it certain that the number of animals killed in the principal hunting region of the state—that north of Bangor, in Piscataquis, Penobscot and Aroostook counties—has been the smallest since 1895. The figures thus far received show that 134 moose have been shipped out of the woods, against 220 in 1898, which was the record year. In 1897 the number was 112, the smallest ever recorded.

This falling off in the figures does not indicate that the moose are dying out in Maine. The chief reason is the law forbidding the killing of any spike horn moose, whatever its age, under a penalty of $500 fine or four months in jail.

Burglars Foiled at Phenix.

PHENIX, Dec. 2.—Burglars tried to break into the Briggs hotel early this morning. The breaking of a glass panel in the front door aroused the inmates, who turned on the electric lights and the robbers decamped. This is the third attempt at burglary in the Pawtuxet valley in three weeks. The attempts at Harris and Riverpoint were successful, but little plunder was secured.

Fall River Print Cloths.

FALL RIVER, Mass., Dec. 2.—Estimated print cloth sales for the week in this city have been 200,000 pieces, standards and odds. The standards for the most part were sold at 3 cents. The price has now been marked up to 3¼ cents, because of sales at that price outside. The sales here at 3¼ cents have been small.

To Start on Full Time.

MILLBURY, Mass., Dec. 2.—The Millbury cotton mills will start up Monday on full time, with a regular force of 135 hands.

Jewett City Mills to Advance Wages.

NORWICH, Conn., Dec. 2.—An advance in wages is to go into effect at the Ashland cotton mills in Jewett City next week. The increase will amount to five per cent.

WEEOTT WRECKED.

Two Persons Out of the Twenty-Four on Board Lost.

EUREKA, Cal., Dec. 2.—Steamer Weeott lies a total wreck on the south jetty of Humboldt bay, having struck the rocks there, and of the 24 persons on board all are safe but two. One passenger, Mrs. Carmichael, a resident of Ferndale, and Gus Nelson, a seaman, lost their lives. Mrs. Carmichael was the first person the life saving crew tried to rescue. She was in the basket which was on the life line run to the doomed vessel from the jetty. A big breaker struck the basket as she was almost in the arms of her rescuers, and she was swept away. Nelson was killed by a falling spar, which struck him and broke his neck.

The Weeott was owned by the N. H. S. Steamship Company, otherwise the Charles P. Doe Company of San Francisco.

Launched from the Sewall Yards.

BATH, Me., Dec. 2.—Steel bark Kaimlani, built by Arthur Sewall & Co., was launched at the works here today. The vessel is of 1,800 tons net register. She was built for the William Dimond Company of San Francisco, for use in the Pacific trade.

CROKER ACCEPTED.

The plethoric condition of the Tammany treasury is revealed with great freedom by Mr. Croker and his associates. They raise $60,000 with perfect ease for the purchase of the Parnell homestead in Ireland, an act which the lord mayor of Dublin says will make the name of Mr. Croker beloved forever in all the homes of Ireland. They are now proposing to take hold of the Dewey Arch fund and carry that through to complete success. Whence comes all this wealth? What is Mr. Croker living on? How does it happen that he can sail for Europe, for several months of idleness and comfortable living, amid the cheers of a great host of admirers, and with no anxiety whatever about paying his bills? These are questions which at one time might have excited mild curiosity in the minds of the people, but nobody bothers himself about them now. Mr. Croker has become one of our most familiar institutions. We accept him and his government, which he says publicly that he runs for his personal benefit, as a matter of course. He serves on our committees of eminent citizens on great public occasions, his name is signed in all lists of notables, and he rides in our processions and accepts gratefully the homage of the people. Through habit, we have come to accept him, as we come to accept everything else. He is, in fact, the chief of those "fundamental advantages of consolidation" which our new charter gave us.—[New York Post.

This Applies to Those

Who appreciate the advantage of selecting from the largest and most varied stock of CHRISTMAS GOODS to be seen in Rhode Island, and where every article is marked at the lowest possible cost, consistent with quality, who will assuredly visit our establishment, and those that can afford it will buy their gifts now, while the lines remain unbroken, the stock new, and so worthy of inspection. A little later many of the goods will be exhausted; perhaps a bit shopworn, saleswoman a little more tired and less alert. Store not over crowded, employes have the time to give you plenty of attention. In fact, much of the illness incidental to Christmas shopping would be averted if those who COULD WOULD make their selections now. All selections kept for you, until desired.

Bitter Controversy Between British and French Press

[Copyright, 1899, by the Associated Press.]

LONDON, Dec. 2.- The utterances of cabinet ministers and others on the subject of the suggested Anglo-Saxon-Teutonic alliance have detracted public attention, to some degree, from the list of casualties that marks British progress in South Africa. But the glowing insinuations of triumphs of British diplomacy cannot stem the growing tide of private sorrow that manifests itself in the ever increasing prevalence of crepe and the absence, through mourning, of many prominent families from social festivities. As Ambassador Choate said at the American Thanksgiving banquet, there is scarcely an English family of his acquaintance without relatives already either killed or wounded in the war. Yet the press has taken kindly to this new topic, though the more conservative papers, such as the Times, point out that a sympathetic alliance with the United States is an easy matter compared with one with Germany, on account of differences in race and language. While it is not actually so stated, the palpable deduction has evidently occurred to the writers on this topic that the United States is far more fitted, from racial and other conditions, to ally herself with Germany than is Great Britain, the development of which, judging from popular opinion, would be decidedly unsatisfactory to Great Britain at present, unless she managed in some way to become a party to the new Dreibund.

The bitter controversy between the British and French press is not without its amusing features. All manner of Frenchmen and French women in England, from ladies' maids to authors and abbés, have kept the correspondence columns of the English papers full of disavowals of the attacks on the queen, which have marked some of the Paris papers, while the French papers themselves take little pains to conceal their satisfaction over the irritation they have created, though the better class of people discountenance the vulgarity of the criticism. The English papers have voluntarily assailed every anti-Dreyfusard in France, but they cannot conceive the justice of tit-for-tat argument when the queen's personality is involved.

A duel just fought in Paris between M. Jules Huret of the Figaro and M. Vian of the Libre Parole sprang partly out of the controversy. M. Huret had been in England sending over pro-British articles to his paper and was denounced by M. Vian, who accepted a challenge, and paid for his criticisms with a wound in the arm which has paralyzed two of his fingers.

Two Irish magistrates were deprived this week by Lord Ashbourne, the lord chancellor of Ireland, of their offices, on account of anti British comments on the Boer war. The proceeding is most unusual, especially as one of the delinquents was a nobleman, Lord Emly, who, speaking to some laborers at Limerick, inferred that Great Britain might have another Ladysmith in Ireland. Lord Ashbourne asked for an explanation but Lord Emly haughtily refused, whereupon he was removed. Lord Emly is prominent in Ireland, both socially and politically, and an ardent home ruler. The only other instance of this kind on record is when Mr. Gladstone, some years ago, deprived Lord Rossmore of a magistracy for similar utterances.

Lord Kitchener has decided to open the Wady Halfa-Khartoum railroad December 1 with a weekly service of trains. Tickets are now being issued to the Second Cataract and Khartoum, where a tourist hotel is being erected.

The hearing of the investigation of the concern with which Lord Mayor Newton is mixed up has, so far, brought out nothing startling against London's chief magistrate. A promoter testified that checks were sent to various financial and other editors to obtain favorable notices of the company, but his testimony has been publicly contradicted by the papers specified.

Charles Dani, the cyclist whose fame up to the present has been based on his defeating Zimmerman at Florence, has been engaged as the leading tenor of the Lyric Theatre, Milan.

The society of American women will give a musical and theatrical entertainment December 4 in aid of hospital ship Maine. Those heretofore prominent in the movement are expected to be present, though it has been decided not to repeat the features which distinguished "The Chantant." Many members of this society, which was asked by the originators of the Maine idea to help them, are considerably chagrined at the fact that their efforts were interpreted in such a partial spirit. Many of them, at first, thought the hospital ship would indicate a desire to alleviate sufferings on both sides, instead of being taken to mean a warm support of Great Britain, as has been done.

Representatives of 80,000 cotton and cloth workers have appealed to the home secretary, declaring they will go out on strike unless the provisions of the law regarding the sanitary conditions of factories are enforced. They specified unhealthful conditions of the law committed by manufacturers. A vigorous prosecution was promised, and as the men apparently made reasonable demands, it is not likely the threatened strike will occur.

The new Austrian budget provides for a consul general in Chicago.

FOOTBALL NOTES.

Football scores from Thanksgiving still continue to come in to the News. The St. Mary's school junior eleven defeated the Young Spring Wharfs, 15 to 0.

Both the Newport teams that played [illegible] Thursday made a good impression [illegible] the spectators and put up a [illegible] and clean article of football.

There will be something new in the football world today at Philadelphia. For the first time in several years the teams of the army and navy cadets from West Point and Annapolis will meet on the gridiron. No admission will be charged but instead 20,000 invitations to the game have been issued, making this easily the biggest invitation affair on record; 10,000 were sent out by the University of Pennsylvania, whose grounds are used, and 5,000 each by the army and navy. It is expected that all the army officers who attend will appear in uniform.

LOCAL BRIEFS.

—Mr. J. J. Rooney is visiting in Pawtucket.

—Miss Rook of New York is visiting Mrs. E. W. Howard.

—Mr. H. F. Eldridge has returned from an extended vacation.

—Mr. Harry McGurry of New York is guest of Mr. T. F. Martin.

—Mr. and Mrs. D. W. Sheehan have returned from a visit to Boston.

—Miss Ella Thomas has gone to Providence, where she is guest of Mrs. Frank Salsbury.

—The body of Mrs. Lavinia Jackson, formerly of this city, was interred at Worcester Monday.

—Mr. John J. Butler, who has been ill more than two months, was able to be about Thanksgiving day.

—Mrs. Fannie E., wife of Mr. J. G. Sheffield, Jr., died at her home at Block Island Thanksgiving afternoon.

—Mr. Howard B. Bryer, who is a student at the Rhode Island School of Design in Providence, is at home for the holidays.

—Chief Engineer R. G. Denig, U. S. N., formerly at the Naval Training Station, and Mrs. Denig sail for Europe today on steamship Spaarndam.

—Mrs. Walden Pell, Mrs. D. Archie Pell, James Duane Pell and Miss Pell are passengers on steamship Ems, which sailed from New York today for Genoa.

—Owing to the long continued dry spell the catch basins are in many cases dry and in need of flushing. This is not so important a matter now as it would be in hot weather.

—Night Officers Quick and Harrington of the summer detail have closed their season on the police force. Usually the summer force goes out about October 1 but this year some were kept on till December 1, as there seemed to be a call for their services.

The anchorage of two barges off Potter's cove, Jamestown, is proving a great annoyance to the telephone and telegraph companies which maintain cable connection across the bay at that point. Just at present the telephone company is repairing damage caused in this way.

Yesterday extra horses were placed in the fire stations for doubling up on the hose apparatus. This does not necessarily mean, though, that all such apparatus will at once respond with a two-horse hitch, for it will take a few days to go through the department and rig the harness from single to double.

—Training ship Alliance, Commander Albert Ross, which has just completed a five months' cruise in European and West Indian waters with a draft of naval apprentices, arrived at New York yesterday. The Alliance left here the latter part of June. She will discharge her draft and go to the New York navy yard for repairs.

—Dominick Ferra was fined $5 and costs this morning, for assaulting James Leva. To the surprise of the judge a warrant was also called for another prisoner by the same name, who was dubbed Dominick Ferra, No. 2. He was also fined $5 and costs, for assaulting Gervaise Donato. The two were engaged in a street melee.

—Yesterday the deed from William Preston Redmond of Jackson, Wyo., to Anthony S. Sherman, for the estate on Kay street adjoining Mr. Sherman's property, was filed for record at the city clerk's office. It conveys the land, house and contents. The consideration named is $10, but the stamps indicate that the price was $7,500. It is taxed for $6,100.

—A welcome addition to the Christmas repertoire of church choir or Sunday school is a musical setting by A. F. Lund of "Ring the Bells for Christmas," a little poem written by Mrs. H. E. Banning of this city for the New York Observer. The words are simple and breathe the great message, as a Christmas carol should, while the musical setting (for use on a pipe organ) is exceptionally bright and telling.

—Friday morning about 6 o'clock, as a wagon load of Italians was proceeding out of town to work, they had an impromptu fight that for a time seemed quite lively. Dinner pails were tossed about and it was reported that one of the men was cut. The row occurred near Bay View avenue, and after it was over the party proceeded to its work. Very few appear to have known anything about the affair, as 6 o'clock is rather an early hour.

Last night the long dry spell took a vacation and the sidewalks and streets put on a coat of moisture, which besides making the air chilly made the asphalt pavement on Thames street very slippery. The dampness seemed to increase somewhat this morning, and amateur weather prophets say that the long looked for storm is at hand. Those who have enjoyed the beautiful weather of the past two weeks or more say, however, that the pleasure they have had cannot be taken from them.

A concert will be given in Masonic hall Monday evening, December 11, by Mr. T. Handasyd Cabot, violoncellist, and Mr. George A. Copeland, Jr., under the patronage of Mrs. Richard Bliss, Mrs. C. L. Best, Mrs. Richard C. Derby, Mrs. Newton M. Mason, Mrs. George H. Norman, Mrs. George Stevens, Mrs. Samuel Powel, Mrs. Charles H. Stockton, Mrs. Henry C. Taylor, Miss Theodora Taylor, Mrs. Oliver W. Huntington and Mrs. Henry Yardley.

George Hanna sought and found lodgings in one of Davis's bakery wagons last night, and when he arose this morning he stole the horse blanket. When searched at the Police Station four towels were found in his pockets, and these he said he stole from Mr. H. B. Auchincloss's house on Harrison avenue. He was sentenced to 30 days at the state farm. After he was sent up it was learned that Mrs. Auchincloss's house on Washington street was broken into and several articles, including the four towels referred to, were stolen.

HAWAIIAN ADVICES.

Contracts for Connecting the Islands by Wireless Telegraph.

HONOLULU, Nov. 23, via Victoria, B. C., Dec. 2.—Contracts have been made for connecting all the islands of the Hawaiian group by the Marconi system of wireless telegraphy. Mr. F. J. Cross states that he has secured exclusive rights to use the system here with an agreement from the inventor to provide an expert to put the system in working order. The apparatus is to arrive by February 1, and the system will be in operation by March 1.

Experiments are to be made with a new cure of leprosy, which it is said on reliable authority has actually accomplished cures. The cure is a Venezuela shrub, of which samples were forwarded here by Surgeon General Wyman of the United States. The shrubs are growing under the care of Dr. Carmichael of the United States marine hospital, who was asked by the department at Washington to make experiments with them.

Complete returns from all island sugar plantations as made to the Hawaiian Planters' Association show that the crop for the year ending with September 30 amounted to 282,807 tons, valued at over $22,500,000. This is an increase of 53,362 tons over the previous year.

Transport Siam, which lost 365 out of her load of 375 mules for Manila, in a typhoon off the coast of Japan, arrived here November 15, to take another lot for the army in the Philippines. She will be repaired here and will leave about November 25. The Pennsylvania and Olympia, bringing the Thirty-ninth infantry and part of the Thirty-fifth from Portland, arrived November 15 and left on the same day. During their stay here Sergeant Jones, colored, of the Thirty-ninth regiment, was shot while resisting a provost guard. Private J. E. McCullin, who had ordered Jones to the vessel, fired the shot, striking Jones in the breast and inflicting a dangerous wound. McCallin's act was approved by his superior officers.

Transports Leelanaw and Conemaugh left together November 18, carrying 592 horses to Manila.

The Lennox has arrived here with horses from Portland.

President Dole and the cabinet have decided to grant a reprieve in the case of Ihara, a native under sentence to hang on the third of next month. Grounds of their action lie in the fact that he was convicted under Hawaiian law, by which a majority verdict of jurors is accepted in criminal cases. This is held to be in conflict with American law.

WORST FOR MANY YEARS.

Pacific Coast Vessels Suffer Severely in the Storms.

CHICAGO, Dec. 2.—A special to the Chicago Record from San Francisco says: That a large number of the vessels on their way to coast ports, now long overdue, are suffering from lack of food and are damaged by the series of heavy gales that have been blowing at sea for some time past is evident from stories brought here today by steamer Robert Adamson. The Enterprise made this port a few hours before the Adamson, in a disabled condition, after a terrible experience. The Adamson reports that she spoke overdue schooner Wing and Wing, and supplied her with provisions. The men on the Wing and Wing had been living for five days on sea gulls' flesh, and were all but starved to death when the steamer went to their rescue.

A large number of vessels are still off Cape Flattery on their way here. It is hoped that cutter McCulloch will be able to assist many of them that are near the harbor. The gales off the coast are said to be the worst that have occurred in many years, and it is feared that great loss of life and property will result from the storms.

Ashore on the Pacific Coast.

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 2.—Schooner Eureka, which left San Francisco November 11, has gone ashore near Bandon, Coos bay. It is not known whether any lives were lost. She carried a crew of about five men.

Memorial Building at a Maine Seminary.

BUCKSPORT, Me., Dec 2—The heirs of John G. Moore, late of the New York banking house of Moore & Schley, have commissioned an architect to make preliminary sketches of a memorial building, to be erected in connection with the East Maine Conference Seminary, at which Mr. Moore was at one time a student. It is expected that the work on the building will be begun next spring.

DOCTORS USE PE-RU-NA.

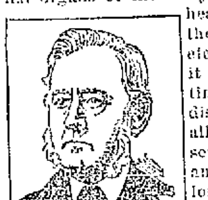

DR. J. W. PENCE, NEWARK, OHIO.

NEWARK, OHIO.

S. B. Hartman, M. D., Columbus, O.:

It is now seventeen years since I received the first edition of your book entitled "The Ills of Life." I received it in the evening mail, and before I retired I read and pondered over every word in the book. I was greatly impressed with your candor and sincerity. The book left no doubt in my mind as to the remarkable virtues of your Pe-ru-na. It was because of this impression that I resolved I would test your assertions, and test them in a way that could leave no doubt.

I began prescribing Pe-ru-na, as recommended in your book, and prescribed it precisely as you directed. As you know, the prevailing diseases are inflammations or irritations of the internal organs of the body, either of the head, the throat, the lungs, bowels, etc. I prescribed it hundreds of times for these diseases during all the following seventeen years, and I have never lost a single case during all this time, although I have often related this to my medical associates, who at first expressed their doubts, and sometimes very emphatically, but after I had treated a large number of cases that had been given up, and cured them, they began to believe what I said.

D. P. Niehart, M. D., of Nebraska City, Mo., prescribes Pe-ru-na every day.

I rely so wholly upon Pe-ru-na in very disease that affects the mucous membranes lining the internal organs, that I never for a moment think of prescribing anything else. Since using Pe-ru-na, I have never had a patient die from inflammation of the lungs, bladder, bowels, stomach or kidneys. Every case recovered in a very short time. In other words, I prescribed Pe-ru-na for all cases of catarrhal diseases. I believe you are right in classing all irritations and inflammations of the internal organs as catarrh. Catarrh means irritation and inflammation of some mucous surface, and also that such irritation and inflammation are caused either by taking cold, or by some local cause.

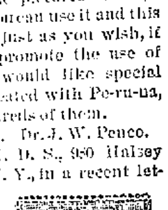

Dr. J. W. Eckert, of Neosho, Mo., a graduate of three schools of medicine, uses Pe-ru-na in his practice with gratifying results.

I see that you generally use a portrait when you publish a certificate, and as I have just had some pictures taken, I enclose you one. You can use it and this letter, one, or both, just as you wish, if you think it will promote the use of Pe-ru-na. If you would like special cases that I have treated with Pe-ru-na, I can give you hundreds of them.

Very truly yours, Dr. J. W. Pence.

A. W. Perrin, M. D. S., 950 Halsey street, Brooklyn, N. Y., in a recent letter to Dr. Hartman says the following: "I am using your Pe-ru-na myself, and am recommending it to my patients in all cases of catarrh, and find it to be more than you represent. Pe-ru-na can be had now of all druggists in this section; at the time I began using it, it was unknown."

BOERS OF FICTION AND FACT.

The "Real Thing" Still Thinks the Earth is Flat.

Between the Boer of fiction and of fact there is no affinity. They differ as much as the "noble red man" who scalps his way through the pages of Fenimore Cooper differs from his squalid, degenerate son in the native reserve. The Boer of fiction is a chivalrous, though somewhat sleepy gentleman in corduroy—a mountain of beef and bone, given to solitary musings, and to the shooting of buck, or "red coats," whichever happen to cross his path. Hunter and hermit, patriot and philosopher, is the mixture out of which he is compounded. The Boer of fact is a creature of another clay. He is a dull, lumpish, lazy animal, with a capacity for ignorance, superstition and tyranny unsurpassed by any white race. His good qualities—for he has redeeming characteristics—appeal strongly to the imagination. He clings with the passionate fervor of a Covenanter to the simple and sublime faith of the literal teaching of the Bible. Love of independence is deep-rooted in his nature. The history of South Africa during two and a half centuries is full of examples of his dogged and unconquerable spirit. But he has in overpowering degree the defects of these qualities. His piety is apt to degenerate into superstition and sanctimonious Pharisaism. Love of independence has begot in him hate of everything that might tend to disturb his reverence for the past, and suspicion of the stranger who threatens to "tread him to death" in the solitude of the veldt. The unconquerable spirit that has made him one of the boldest pioneers the world has seen has become corrupted into obstinate conceit.

The absolute seclusion and independence of the pastoral life of the Boer farmer are accountable for his ignorance. His education is limited to six months' instruction by a tutor, who visits the farm on the silent veldt as soon as the children of the family are grown up. Few of them can read, and still fewer are able to write. Yet the Boer will tolerate nothing that would dispel his ignorance or contradict his superstitions. He is still convinced that the sun moves round the earth, and that the earth is a flat and solid substance, resting on unseen foundations. "What is this nonsense in which you English believe about the earth being round?" asked a wealthy Boer who is a member of the Volksraad. It was vain to offer Galileo's explanation, "I have seen the shadow of the earth on the moon." The familiar proof of a ship on the horizon was treated with derision. "Do you not always see the top of a thing first?" was the retort. "No," said my friend, the Boer legislator; "I can believe none of this new-fangled nonsense. Many a time returning home on the veldt have I thought over these things. I have watched for hours in the moonlight to see whether the kopje near my homestead really did move, but it is always there—always in the same place. And as for the sun, did not Joshua bid it stand still?" Against arguments of this kind reason avails not; yet I ventured to ask how the sun managed to get under the foundations of the earth every night so as to be in his place in the morning. This difficulty had never presented itself, and the only reply, uttered with unswerving conviction, was: "Well, I do not believe this nonsense, and Oom Paul does not believe it."

Should you suffer from malarial fever contracted in the marshy country, the Dutch pastor, who has heard nothing of the latest researches into mosquito virus, and is sublimely unconscious of his own case, will console you with the warning that it is a Divine punishment for having left the land of your birth. Persistence in the ways of his fathers is a strong characteristic of the Boer. Except in the Free State, where a few farmers have outraged public opinion and flown in the face of Providence by introducing machinery, the method of cultivating the soil is that of Syria and Palestine. Corn is still trodden, and the law is: "Thou shalt not muzzle the ox when he treadeth out the corn." But the ox that presumes to think himself worthy of his reward is beaten unmercifully. Thus is the letter of the law of Moses observed. There is nothing the Boer is not capable of doing with a good conscience. He will beat a Kaffir to death, yet will never believe that the native is not his loyal and devoted friend. At this moment, when every Kaffir in the land is eager to murder his white oppressor, the Boer imagines that he has only to say the word, and Basuto, Swazi, Matabele, Zulu and all the black tribes would fall upon and destroy his enemies. This confidence in his destiny and consciousness of superiority over every created thing would be sublime were it not ridiculous.

As a family man, the Boer's reputation would justify him in becoming a candidate for the Dunmow Flitch. Surly and suspicious in manner, heavy and uncouth in his ways, shy and reserved among strangers, you may win him to a gruff cordiality if you are a husband and father and care to listen to the details of his domestic life. But, although the Boer certainly cherishes with deep affection his wife and children, he treats them according to Oriental rather than European ideas. The women always stand until the men are seated, and are not served until the wants of their lords and masters are satisfied. I am describing the customs of the farmer who lives on the veldt, and has no acquaintance with Western manners. Such a man is little removed from a state of barbarism, and his surroundings are often as squalid as those of a Kaffir. Despite this patriarchal rule, the vrouw has great influence over her man, and is credited with having on more than one occasion screwed his courage up to the fighting point. The Boer vrouw is not a beauty, notwithstanding the care with which she preserves her complexion from the effects of the sun. Her ambition, like that of the fishwives at Scheveningen, is to become as fat as an ox, though, unlike the Dutch wife, she is not an example of scrupulous cleanliness. The Boer is not hospitable. He resents the presence of strangers, and, being too lazy to cultivate more than is necessary for the immediate wants of his family, he has nothing to spare for uninvited guests.

I have endeavored to paint out some of the most striking characteristics of these people, who have cast a malign spell over civilization and progress in South Africa. There is a higher type of Boer, who is comparatively clean in person and almost European in thought and habit. He may be corrupt and sly—"slim" is the word they use—as his detractors make out, yet he is less objectionable than the semi-barbarous fanatic on the veldt. His sense of honor may not be keen, and his disregard for the truth many indicate a low moral standard. But his capacity for mischief is modified by the European environment with which he surrounds himself. Where he is not in a decided majority, his disposition is arrogant and overbearing, but he is easily cowed by the display of physical force. The Boer of the farm and the veldt, as well as of the border towns, is less amenable to reason. His phenomenal ignorance, his monumental conceit, his unconquerable hatred of the British, make him a tyrant. It would astound many who have never been in the country, as few could realize, from personal observation or experience, the nature of this Boer tyranny. So subtle and far-reaching are its effects that in many districts on British soil our fellow-countrymen pass their lives in subjection. They are compelled to endure sights and swallow insults that would have long since driven a less patient people to civil war. The Boer is firmly convinced that the British are a race of cowards. Not all the eloquence of Mr. Gladstone could persuade him that the color of the British flag is not white, or that the independence of the Transvaal was not won by force of arms at Laing's Nek and Majuba.—[London Standard.

CUBA TO BE GIVEN A CIVIL GOVERNMENT.

There is little likelihood, in the judgment of prominent members of the administration, that the appeals which are now made with such frequency to the President to relinquish his policy of giving a civil government to Cuba will accomplish anything. The President did not go into this matter, they say, without giving it a good deal of thought and without consulting men of affairs in whose judgment he had the utmost confidence. The advice of all these counsellors, though differing in some details, pointed straight in one direction. The principle underlying it was that no people are satisfactorily educated for self-government under a dictatorship; and military government is only another name for dictatorial government. It has been impressed upon the President that the way to secure permanent peace is to assume that peace exists—in other words, to encourage the establishment and prosecution of all peaceful arts and industries, and subordinate martial features to their place in an ordinary peaceful community, as police agencies purely.

To this end, the President has long desired to set up a government in Cuba that shall bear at least a general analogy to the civil government which it is hoped the Cubans may be prepared to conduct by themselves one day. It will not be possible, of course, to have a constitution and a separate code of laws for the island, binding upon the President's appointee as civil governor as well as upon the citizens of Cuba generally, but the nearest practicable approach to this will be made. There will probably be no general exodus of troops, but the number kept on the island is liable to be considerably reduced, and those who remain will be withdrawn from the foreground of affairs as much as possible. It is thus hoped, by degrees, to accustom the Cubans to the ideas and habits of permanent peace after an estrangement of about a generation. It may take another generation to do this, or it may be accomplished in a somewhat less time, a great deal depending on the spirit in which the islanders meet the President's overtures. If they prove adaptable and eager to wipe out the bloody past and help in a hopeful future, it may be possible to cut the leading-strings long before the time now fixed.—[Washington correspondent of Boston Transcript.

EXPENSE OF TARGET PRACTICE.

Big guns now being put in place for the protection of the seacoasts cost a large sum. Some interesting figures on this subject have just been submitted to General Wilson and will be sent by him to Congress.

With its disappearing carriage a 12-inch breech-loading rifle costs $141,000; a 10 inch, $99,250, and eight inch, $72,000. Modern high-powdered guns cost an immense sum of money and the cost of firing them is proportionately as great. The report of experts who have inspected these guns and the devices for firing them and securing an accurate aim show that there is an immense saving effected by having modern range and position finding apparatus.

One of the reports made by an expert stated that the demoralizing effect of a hit as compared to a miss cannot be reduced to a money value, but it costs big money to shoot a big gun and then miss the mark. Take, for instance, a 12-inch gun. To miss the mark is simply to throw away $581.70. With the 10-inch gun the loss is $322.40 and with the eight-inch rifle it is $164.65.—[Scientific American.

FISCAL REFORMS IN PORTO RICO.

The municipalities had to allow the insular government to satisfy its demands on the taxes before they could take their own quota, which consequently often fell short. As a compensation they were allowed to levy a consumo tax on articles of food, drink and fuel. So they taxed meat and flour, milk, wine, etc., and charcoal, which is used almost exclusively in the kitchen, and petroleum. Rice, which had already paid $2.10 gates $1 consumo tax; flour, which had also paid $4 at the custom-house, paid customs duties, had to pay at the city $2.50 consumo tax, making a total of .50 (Porto Rican) per kilo of 221 pounds. This tax General Henry wisely abolished, with the result that the prices of bread, meat and other articles of necessity were reduced. The order allowed the cities to make up the deficiency by imposing heavier taxes on liquor and tobacco stores, which under the old system had not paid special rates.

These wise measures, which came as a great boon to the agriculturists and the poor, were accompanied by better methods of collection and less discrimination in assessments, and rigid economy was introduced in government expenditures. Useless positions were abolished and the following appropriations were entirely cut off: About $700,000 sent to Madrid for expenses of the colonial ministry and for the payment of pensions; $200,000 for the support of the church, which ceased to be a state church, without special order; the expense of conducting the lottery; all "gratificaciones," or bonuses, allowed to officials; the appropriations for the army and navy, amounting to $1,500,000 (Porto Rican); and a number of items of minor importance. In other words, considerably more than two fifths of the annual insular expenditures were saved, and the efficiency of the government actually increased instead of diminished.—[H. K. Carroll, LL. D., in the American Monthly Review of Reviews.

AMERICAN DISCOVERIES IN THE ANTARTIC.

The first important discovery of land by an American came about in 1820. At that time the South Shetland islands, sighted by Dirk Gerritz in 1598, and by him named New Iceland, had just been rediscovered by Sir William Smith, and according to the good old English custom, duly rechristened. They seemed to offer a good field for sealers, and promptly a fleet from Stonington was on hand in Yankee Harbor, then the southernmost refuge known. The commander, Captain Pendleton, noticed lofty peaks, still farther south, and sent Captain N. B. Palmer, in sloop Hero, "but little rising 40 tons," to make investigations. Captain Palmer found the new country extensive, but bleak and useless for sealing, and he promptly returned. Near Yankee Harbor he fell in with the famous Russian exploring expedition under Bellingshausen. The Russians had supposed the South Shetland to be a discovery of theirs, and were amazed to find an American vessel "apparently," as Fanning reports the speech of the commander, "in as fine order as if it were but yesterday she had left the United States." They were further amazed when Palmer told them of the new land beyond. Bellingshausen sailed farther south, and discovered more lands, but did not forget to give to Palmer the honor of first sighting the outlines of the continent.

In the following season Palmer visited his discovery again, coasted it for almost 15 degrees—from about the sixty-fourth parallel of longitude to the forty-ninth—and at 61 degrees 41 minutes came upon a strait which he named after Washington. He landed in a bay, and christened it for Monroe. His names, however, together with those given by other Americans, have disappeared from the charts.—[Albert White Vorse, in Scribner's.

Keep away from "cheap" trusses. They are more likely to disable than to cure you. When you need a truss, you need it badly, and you can't afford to risk wearing any but the perfect one. You can afford to experiment in clothing and shoes and such things but when it comes to things of such vital importance as trusses—be cautious.

Saved Her Daughter

The first critical period in a woman's life comes at the passing of her girlhood. How to preserve the daughter's health at this crisis is the problem that confronts every mother of girls. Mrs. J. M. Riggs, of Carterville, Mo., solved this problem. She says:

"My daughter Josie during the winter of 1897-98 suffered a complete breakdown in health. She was thin and pale, had no appetite, and was so weak that she was unable to walk to school. Those who knew her condition said that she was in the first stages of consumption. Shortly after school closed, on the advice of a neighbor, we began giving her Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People. The effect on her condition was marvelous. Before she had taken half a box her condition was improved, and she kept on gaining appetite, strength and flesh until she was entirely well.

"She took three boxes of the pills and to-day there is not a healthier, more robust looking girl in Carterville. She is fleshier and healthier than ever before in her life."

NEW YORK, Dec. 2, Wall Street—The stock market opened firm, with American Steel & Wire at 49⅝, Atchison preferred 66, Burlington 133¾, Continental Tobacco 41½, Federal Steel 62⅛, Leather 12, Louisville 85⅜, Manhattan 105¾, Brooklyn Transit 86, Northern Pacific 57½, People's Gas 113½, Sugar 155¾, St. Paul 125, Southern preferred 58⅛, Tennessee Coal & Iron 115¾, Union Pacific 51, and Union Pacific preferred 77⅜.

11—Strength was developed in various parts of the list. Sugar sold up 1¾, in sympathy with the advance in American Sugar. American Linseed preferred continued its recent advance movement and Pacific Mail and Reading first preferred gained a point each. Heavy takings of Union Pacific, Northern Pacific and Burlington lifted them sharp fractions.

Closing—Money on call, steady, at 5 per cent; prime mercantile paper, 5½ @ 6; sterling exchange, firm, at $4.86¼ @ ½ for demand and at $4.81 @ ¼ for 60 days; posted rates, $4.82 @ ½; commercial bills, $4.80¼ @ ½; silver certificates, 58¾ @ 59½; bar silver, 59; Mexican dollars, 47½; government bonds, strong; state bonds, inactive; railroad bonds, irregular. The bank statement accorded with the forecast and brought little realizing by professionals. The market was listless and closed dull and easy at small mixed net changes.

SUNDAY SERVICES.

Special Announcements for the Churches Tomorrow.

Rev. T. C. McClelland, Ph. D., will preach at both services at the United Congregational Church tomorrow. In the evening he will give the sixth in the series of talks on the Bible, the subject being "The Spiritual Study of the Bible."

At the Second Baptist the pastor, Rev. J. Frank Fleming, will repeat by request, at the morning service, a sermon on "A Living Sacrifice," and the Holy Communion will be celebrated at the close. The subject at the evening service will be "The Use and Abuse of Moral Liberty."

At the Swedish Methodist Episcopal Church, Annandale road, there will be preaching by the pastor, Rev. H. Olson, at 10.30 in the morning and 7.45 in the evening. The Sunday school meets at 12 o'clock.

At the First Methodist Episcopal Church the Holy Communion will be celebrated at 10.45, and there will be preaching in the evening.

Rev. Walter F. Greenman of Fitchburg, Mass., will occupy the pulpit of the Channing Memorial.

At the evening service at Emmanuel Rev. Henry Morgan Stone, rector of Trinity, will preach.

At the First Presbyterian the pastor, Rev. George Whitefield Mead, will preach at the morning service on "The Mind of Christ," and in the evening on "Another Step in Christian Progress—the Step of Joy." The Sunday school and adult Bible class will meet in the vestry at 12.15 and at Grace Chapel, Wellington avenue, at 12.30.

At the Shiloh Baptist there will be preaching by the pastor, Rev. H. N. Jeter, in the morning, his subject being "The Spirit of God." Rev. Mahlon Van Horne is expected to preach at the special service at 3 in the afternoon. In the evening at 7.30 the right hand of fellowship will be given to new members and the Lord's Supper will be observed.

At St. George's the rector will preach at the morning service and Rev. E. J. Dennen of Trinity in the evening.

At the Thames Street Methodist Episcopal there will be a sacramental service in the morning and preaching by the pastor, Rev. P. M. Vinton, in the evening. The Sunday school meets at 12.15 and the Epworth League at 6.15.

At the Swedish Mission Church, Wellington avenue, there will be preaching by the pastor, Rev. A. F. Hogberg, at 10.45 in the morning and 8 in the evening, and a young people's service at 7 o'clock.

The morning service at the Young Men's Christian Association will be conducted by Mr. A. M. Steed, and at 5.30 in the afternoon there will be a men's rally, with an address by Mr. C. B. Fernald of Brown University. The boys' meeting will be at 4.15.

There will be a Gospel service at Fort Adams at 2 o'clock, under the direction of the Young Men's Christian Association, with an address by Mr. C. B. Fernald of Brown University.

At the Lutheran Church, Corne street, Scandinavian services will be held at 10.45 and 7.15. In the morning the pastor, Rev. C. J. A. Holmgren, will preach on "Christ's First Sermon at Nazareth."

At the First Baptist Church the pastor, Rev. Brewer G. Boardman, will preach in the morning on "Keeping Back Part of the Price." After the sermon the sacrament of the Lord's Supper will be observed. The topic for the evening service will be "Does God Know our Needs?"

At the Union Congregational Church the pastor, Rev. Byron Gunner, will preach at both services. For the morning the topic will be "The Friend at Our Door," and in the evening there will be a Thanksgiving sermon on the theme, "A Nation's Good Day of Gladness."

THE INVESTORS TRUST COMPANY.

A Philadelphia despatch says: No complaint has yet been made to the police in regard to the Investors Trust Company of 1221 Arch street, the officers of which have not yet appeared to claim furniture, letters, cash balance in bank, or anything else. Thursday a detective connected with a private agency entered the place, saying he had been retained by several persons who have invested money to look out for their interests. He sat in the office and received and opened several telegrams that were sent by patrons. Each of these requested the payment of money. He telegraphed replies that the concern had failed. When asked on what authority he had taken the action he refused to give the names of those who employed him, and to the suggestion that he had no right to open letters addressed to the cashier of the concern, he replied that nothing would please him better than for some one to institute proceedings against him. This man has been looking over the books, but declined to say what they revealed. He did say that some action would be taken that would show how the company had been operating. It was said that Charles L. Work, vice president of the concern, was a son of George F. Work, who was president of the Bank of North America at the time of the failure which wiped out the savings of hundreds of poor people, and for his connection with which he received a sentence to the penitentiary. At the time of the failure Charles L. Work was manager of the branch in Gloucester, N. J. His name does not appear in the city directory for this year, although it is in that for 1898, the address being a boarding house on Arch street, near Twenty-first.

Beware of Ointments for Catarrh that contain Mercury, as mercury will surely destroy the sense of smell and completely derange the whole system when entering it through the mucous surfaces. Such articles should never be used except on prescriptions from reputable physicians, as the damage they will do is ten fold to the good you can possibly derive from them. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, O., contains no mercury, and is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. In buying Hall's Catarrh Cure be sure you get the genuine. It is taken internally, and is made in Toledo, Ohio, by F. J. Cheney & Co. Testimonials free.

Sold by Druggists, price 75c. per bottle.

FORGET NOT JOHN BROWN, THE MARTYR.

To the Editor of the News:

My bed chamber is so arranged with pictures as to evoke sacred emotions. This morning when I awoke my eyes fell on a picture of a hero. It carried me back 40 years, to 1859; to John Brown, who, had he have been of a country and age when men were deified, would have been. On the second day of December, 1859, John Brown was led to be hanged on a gallows. He bore himself serenely: his eyes beheld admiringly the beauties of nature; he spoke of them; no expressions of regret escaped his lips. It is said he kissed a little black child. There was evidently upon him the conviction that God, his creator, would welcome him, that his spirit would continue to work for the freedom and elevation of my race, as I believe it is doing, though lowering clouds are hanging over my country. To John Brown's spirit let me say, with a hallelujah accompaniment: "March on," glories await thee; you are remembered by the ransomed.

CITY COUNCIL MEETINGS.

The various committees of the City Council have been preparing for the regular meeting next Tuesday. This may be the second last meeting of this year's council, and then again it may not be, for the council has a record for meetings that it will be hard to beat. At one time special meetings were few and far between and some years there were perhaps not more than 14 meetings—12 regular meetings and the extra ones in January and December, or in the first and last months of the municipal year. So far this year the common council has held 23 meetings and the board of aldermen has gone 20 better, having to date a record of 43. The committee work this year has been undoubtedly also greater than in any previous year, as there are more committees. The city hall commission, which is really a committee, alone must have had many sessions.

REAL ESTATE TRANSFERS.

Benjamin Weaver has sold to Susan J. Weaver for $20,000, three parcels of real estate bounded as follows:

First—A lot with dwelling-house bounded west, 60 feet, on Bellevue avenue; north, 202 feet, on East Bowery street; east, 60 feet, on land of Wealthy M. Weaver, and south, 202 feet, on land recently sold to Martha P. R. Codman.

Second—A lot with buildings thereon, bounded west on Freebody street, north on the Freebody land, east on land of Caroline L. Williams and south on Weaver avenue.

Third—A lot with buildings thereon, bounded north on Weaver avenue, west on land of Caroline L. Williams, north on the Freebody land and east on land of McCarthy.

SMOKING ON THE ISLAND ROAD.

"A new order of things has gone into effect on the Island road. Since the establishment of the road, until the retirement of Superintendent Fillmore, smoking on the closed cars has been strictly prohibited, even on chartered cars, the latter part of the restriction having proved particularly displeasing to smokers. General Manager Goff, though, is a smoker himself, and has issued an order permitting smoking in the front vestibule with the motorman, if one is willing to stand while enjoying this pleasure. The rule appears to have been particularly well received by the smokers, while those who object to smoking have no reason to complain, as they are in no way affected by the privilege."—Fall River Herald.

LOCAL BRIEFS.

—Mr. Dwight Braman has gone to New York.

Mrs. Duncan Elliot has returned from New York.

Mr. J. Neilson Howard is back from New York.

The improvements in the shoe store of Mr. Richard Bullock have materially improved its convenience and sightliness.

Rev. Mahlon Van Horne, accompanied by his son and secretary, will start for St. Thomas, West Indies, where he is American consul, Tuesday next.

—The Fall River Globe gave the performance of the Holy Name Minstrels of St. Joseph's parish, who played in Fall River Thursday night for the benefit of St. Louis parish, a very flattering notice.

—C. E. Strong of Jersey City, John Sawyer, Jr., of New York, J. E. White of New Bedford, F. McKinnon and G. J. Kilton of Providence and P. E. Foley of Fitchburg are registered at the Perry House.

Thanksgiving day the Swedish Methodist Episcopal Church met with the Swedish Free Mission Friends' Church at the former's house on Annandale road, Rev. A. T. Hogberg of the Free Mission delivering the sermon. At the Swedish Lutheran Church on Corne street the pastor, Rev. C. J. A. Holmgren, preached from Genesis xxxii: 10: "I am not worthy of the least of all the mercies, and of all the truth, which thou hast shewed unto thy servant."

Mr. John Adam, while in his saloon in the Adams House this morning, was stricken with apoplexy or paralysis, which seems to affect his right side most severely. When found he was alone, but he was quickly conveyed up stairs and medical aid summoned. It is thought that the attack is a very severe one and that the patient's chances of rallying cannot be said to be good. Mr. Adam has for many years been prominently identified with the Knights of Sherwood Forest and the local Scottish societies.

PRACTICALLY A NEW BILL.

Amateur Minstrels Give as Good a Show as Many Professionals.

The local amateurs known as the G. W. West minstrels gave the first of two performances at the Opera House last evening, and were greeted by a large audience which had plenty of opportunity to applaud the many good things on the program. The company has been largely increased since its former appearance and gave practically a new bill. The performance was as enjoyable as many a professional show, although there was evidence at times of amateurism, which, however, was not sufficient to detract from its success.

The overture, which opened with the songs, "Swing them Golden Gates Wide Open" and "My Hannah Lady," introduced Fred Barker as interlocutor, George West, Sid Greason, Fred Lewis, Arthur King and Charles Sherman as tambos, and Billy Pendergast, Archie Sayer, Billy Austin, Ben Gill and Harry Barlow as bones, with a large chorus. The jokes and other business by the end men were good and for the most part new, and the songs by Messrs. Oneby, Sayer, Gladding, Greason, Pendergast, Lynn, Grey and West were well rendered. The soloists were Ed. Oneby, Robert Gladding, Will R. Lynn and John Grey.

The olio opened with clever imitations on the harmonica by Thomas Wood, accompanied by Gorton Powers, who executed a well drawn picture of Admiral Dewey on the blackboard. Then came George and Nate Champion in their tumbling act, in which a number of difficult feats were executed. George W. West next appeared in a rag-time song, introducing his pickaninnies in a cake walk. Frank Burgess gave an excellent exhibition of club swinging and William Ackerman repeated his juggling act with several new tricks. The finale introduced the colored company in buck dances.

Instrumental music was furnished by the Harry K. Howard orchestra and band, and the chorus was assisted by William Carr, Arthur Wood, Charles Hammond, John Hefferman, Gorton Powers, Charles Titcomb, Frank Burgess, William Bartley, William Goffe and David Barry.

LONG TENURE SENATORS.

A survey of the field determines the fact that the average Senatorial tenure is longer in the central West than in the older Eastern states, and furthermore, that the record of individual tenure is held by a Western state, with a strong probability of its being broken within six years by another Western Senator, and perhaps by two Senators. In the history of Congress there are 24 Senators who have had a tenure of 20 years and upwards, as follows:

John Sherman, Ohio, 32 years; Justin S. Morrill, Vermont, 32; Thomas H. Benton, Missouri, 30; William R. King, Alabama, 30; Henry B. Anthony, Rhode Island, 26; William B. Allison, Iowa, 26; John P. Jones, Nevada, 26; Hannibal Hamlin, Maine, 25; George F. Edmunds, Vermont, 24; Francis M. Cockrell, Missouri, 24; Charles Sumner, Massachusetts, 23; Matt W. Ransom, North Carolina, 23; George F. Hoar, Massachusetts, 22; John T. Morgan, Alabama, 22; William H. Stewart, Nevada, 22; Nehemiah R. Knight, Rhode Island, 21; John Gaillard, South Carolina, 21; John J. Crittendon, Kentucky, 20; Henry M. Teller, Colorado, 20; George G. Vest, Missouri, 20; Isham G. Harris, Tennessee, 20; Daniel W. Voorhees, Indiana, 20; Don Cameron, Pennsylvania, 20; Orville H. Platt, Connecticut, 20.

Eleven of these long-tenure Senators are dead; there are four ex-members still living—Messrs. Sherman, Edmunds, Ransom and Cameron. The remaining nine are still Senators—Messrs. Allison, Jones, Cockrell, Hoar, Morgan, Stewart, Teller, Vest and Platt. If Allison and Jones live until 1903, they will have been in office continuously for 30 years. It is not likely either will resign. In 1903 Allison will be 74 and Jones 73 years of age. Both will doubtless survive several years beyond that date, as both appear to be of sound constitution.

Mr. Allison, particularly, considering his regular habits, system of work, robust health and placid temperament, is very likely to live long, and round out a Senatorial career of 36 years. Politically, his prospects for re-election are perhaps better than those of the Nevada Senator, but both are measurably sure to be returned.

So, then, at 1906, when they will respectively have reached the ages of 77 and 76, both Allison and Jones will have exceeded the longest Senatorial tenure.

Therefore, in the present aspect of things political, it appears reasonably safe to predict that certainly Mr. Allison, and probably also Mr. Jones, will eventually win and hold the Senate's long-tenure belt. As between these two, which will beat the other is, of course, problematical. Mr. Jones has one year in age the advantage of the Iowa senator, and his chances of success are to that extent the better, but physically and politically Senator Allison has perhaps a shade the better of it.

Although younger than Mr. Allison by five years, Mr. Cockrell's chances are not considered so good, because the Missouri Senator lacks the Iowan's apparently sound constitution and mental equipoise; he is too querulous and raspy to last at his present age into a prolonged tenure. The betting would be against him for another reason—he has two years longer to serve than either Allison or Jones to beat Sherman's record. But, if alive, Mr. Cockrell will undoubtedly be reelected by the Missourians.

Our Newport Store

Is part of our great plan that places us far and away ahead of all other grocers in facilities for buying and turning over every sort of goods in our line. It's a big plan but simply told. We are cut-price grocers because our great cash purchasing for 25 stores makes cut prices normal prices with us. Think of the enormous amount of tea we import for them. Think of the coffee we roast. Think of the numberless advantages we constantly afford our vast trade. These are some of the reasons why we are the largest concern in New England and maintain one store in Newport. We want you to share the economies of this great concern.

EGGS. Do not buy icehouse eggs. You are using a good many for cooking now, and icehouse eggs will spoil everything you put them in. Our lowest-priced eggs are fresh Western eggs and cost less than icehouse. If you need eggs to eat raw or for invalids, our best eggs are received from the country, daily.

A full line of Thanksgiving goods at Lowest Possible Prices.

RUSSELL'S XXXX FAMILY FLOUR. This is the best Flour ever brought into New England.

TEAS—Do not pay 75c. and $1 per pound for tea. Our teas at 45c. per lb. are the best that money can buy. Good 70c. tea for 35c. per lb.

COFFEES—If you are in the habit of paying 35c. to 40c. per pound for coffee, try our coffee at 25c. per pound. We are satisfied it will please you.
